FRANCE BRINGS STRONG PRESSURE TO BEAR ON GREAT BRITAIN

Seeks Joint Action for Expulsion of Former Crown Prince From Germany—London Confident Holland Will Keep Pledge to Act as Jailer of Former Kaiser

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press) France is bringing strong pressure to bear on Great Britain, looking to joint action for the expulsion of the former crown prince from Germany.

For the moment the British government believes it useless to try to undo the accomplished fact, but no decision regarding a final policy will be announced until the cabinet, which is meeting today, has carefully examined the whole subject in the light of Premier Lloyd George's latest overtures.

Meanwhile the government has received no official intimation that the

PLAN TO REDUCE COAL PRICES

Gov. Pinchot Gathering Data to Form Basis of Draft of Legislative Program

Invites Chief Executives of 29 States to Meet and Consider "Specific Program"

HARRISBURG, Pa., Nov. 14.—Data which will form the basis of Governor Pinchot's suggestions to the governors of anthracite consuming states who accept an invitation which he sent them last night to meet him here Nov. 25 and draft a federal legislative program to reduce coal prices, was being assembled today by the governor.

The chief executives of 29 states were invited to come here and consider a "specific program" for which Gov. Pinchot wrote them he was prepared to submit a suggestion. If this program is found practicable, he proposed that the governors agreed upon a definite plan of legislation to be laid before the congress at the coming session. The governor gave no intimation of what suggestion he had in mind further than to say that since settlement of the coal mining suspension, early in September, an investigation of anthracite prices had been under way here and that it had resulted in "the outline of a definite plan for national legislation and for state action."

OWNERSHIP OF DEATH TAXI DISCLAIMED

James C. and John W. Clarke, owners of the Red Line Taxi service, in superior court this morning disclaimed ownership of the taxicab which figured in an accident in Rogers street last January, that resulted in the death of James Kelley.

The co-defendants assert the cab was operated independently by an individual owner who merely used their telephone line in his business and paid them a small proportion of all fares for this privilege.

Upon the viewpoint of the jury on this one question probably hinges the outcome of the case. The plaintiff contends that the cab was operated under the Red Line patronage and direction. The Clarke are sued for $10,000 by Kelley's father, of the victim and administrator of his estate, on the ground that the machine was in the service of the defendants when the accident occurred.

William D. Wagon is counsel for the plaintiff and Kerwin & Reilly for the defense.

AN UNUSUAL CASE IN THE DISTRICT COURT

Angus McDonald, 52 years old, was today ordered to recognize in $500 for his reappearance before Judge Wright in district court on Nov. 22.

A mother and her daughter, both doing mothers, expressed themselves as desirous that the court should direct McDonald to proceed to the altar with them.

Of course the court couldn't suggest with propriety that McDonald marry them both so McDonald was bound over while justice ponders.

"Would be a menace to the community to have the man marry either of them," said Judge Wright in making temporary disposition. Neglect to provide for a minor child is the charge against McDonald but it was soon evident in court that this single neglect doesn't tell the half of it.

Two children, one the child and the other the grandchild of the elder of the two women involved, were in court with their mothers and these children appeared to be about the same age.

NESMITH FUND CASE SETTLED

City Will Restore It In Full
On Or Before April 15 of Next Year

Solicitor Wins Fight For Accompanying Interest
Rate of 5 Per Cent

By agreement of counsel before Judge DeCourcy of the supreme judicial court yesterday, the city of Lowell will restore the Nesmith fund in full on or before April 15, 1924. The city also will pay to the fund trustees interest upon the principal of $25,000 from April, 1913, to the date of restoration.

At the hearing on the case yesterday the city, represented by Solicitor Patrick J. Reynolds, won its point in the matter of the interest rate to be fixed, it being the city's contention that 5 per cent. was fair. Fisher Nesmith, representing the trustees, insisted upon a 3 1/2 per cent. rate, but after hearing testimony offered by Theodore N. Waddell, state comptroller of accounts and City Auditor Daniel R. Martin as to earnings of trust funds in the city and throughout the state, Judge DeCourcy decided the 5 1/2 per cent. rate claimed by the trustees was too high and ruled that the fund should carry an interest rate of 5 per cent. from June, 1913, to the date of restoration.

After restoration the trustees will be paid whatever income the fund earns.

The only witness called by Mr. Nesmith was Austin K. Chadwick of the Lowell Five Cent Savings bank.

There was no issue involved as to the restoration of the principal of the fund, that having been decided by the full bench earlier this year.

Thus is settled a case which has been hanging fire for some time, being the result of the disappearance of the fund in 1913.

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE IS DISMISSED

A manslaughter complaint against Samuel B. Slack of 50 Beacon street was dismissed in district court this morning, an inquest finding showing no criminal negligence on his part in connection with the death, on Oct. 16, of John H. Erdis, who died at St. John's hospital as the result of being struck by Slack's machine at the corner of Chelmsford and Westford streets.

The accident occurred about 8 o'clock on the morning of Oct. 16 as Slack was driving his machine in Chelmsford st. on the way to his place of business. The inquest states that he was driving at a speed of about 17 miles an hour when Erdis stepped from the sidewalk, near Erdis' bakery, directly in the path of the machine. In attempting to avoid the accident, the front wheels of the machine went up on the sidewalk, but the rear wheels skidded and struck Erdis, fracturing his skull. Other items in the inquest state that Slack sounded his horn, was going at a reasonable rate of speed and applied his brakes. He was represented by Atty. John A. Crowley.

though his health had not been good for several years, and as pneumonia developed he was unable to withstand it.

In the death of Dr. Fisher thousands of Lowell people lose a sincere friend, a man who seemed to live only for the happiness he could bring to others and who ever kept himself on instant call when his services were requested. He had been pastor of the First Universalist church for nearly 28 years, that anniversary falling on the last Sunday of the present month, and he

CROWD SEES TWO SHOT TO DEATH

Elevated Station Filled When Gunmen Opened Fire on Bank Messengers

Bandits Flee in Auto Equipped With Device to Emit
Smoke Screen

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two bank messengers were murdered by two bandits who stole $43,600 from them in a spectacular holdup today at the 54th Street station of the West End subway line at 53th street and New Utrecht avenue, Brooklyn.

The elevated station was filled with workers when the bandits opened fire, later fleeing with their haul in an automobile for which the police have sent out a general alarm within a 50 mile radius of the city.

The messengers who were shot were William H. Barlow and William H. McLaughlin, both of Brooklyn, and employed by the West End bank. They were taking the money to a Brooklyn branch of the Irving National bank.

Both messengers were armed.

As they were leaving the bank, carrying the money in a black bag, Barlow felt for his pistol and found he had left it behind him. He returned and got it.

"Don't let anyone take the money away from you," said a clerk, laughing.

"I'll resist until I'm killed," Barlow replied, lightly.

As they were descending the stairs of the station, the messengers were met by the two bandits. Passengers on the platform heard several shots but could not see exactly what happened.

Persons on the street, however, saw the robbers snatch up the bag, jump into an automobile which they had left with engine running and disappear. A third bandit had been left at the wheel.

Pedestrians were unable to get the license number, for the robbers had changed the latest bandit device of burning some compound which emits a smoke screen through the exhaust.

THE AUDITORIUM ORGAN

Building Commission Accepts
Instrument and Turns it
Over to Trustees

At a meeting of the Memorial Auditorium building commission late yesterday afternoon it was voted to accept the Auditorium organ now completely installed by the Howard Organ Co. of Pittsfield, Mass., and to make final payment upon it.

Accompanying this vote was the formally turning the instrument over to the building trustees, which means that hereafter it will be available for use as the trustees desire. While the use of the organ undoubtedly will be more or less general, there will be an examining board of three local organizations to whom all applications for its use will be referred as to the competency of the applicant. Each applicant also will be subject to an actual demonstration test before sanction is given.

HIDS OPEN UP CITY HALL

The city building inspector today received and opened the following bids for furnishing new copper gutters and repainting the roof of the Worthen street school: Daniel Cushing & Co., $250; Davis Square Sheet Metal Co., $316; Harry Ogden $156; J. L. Jones, Inc., $569. The contract will be awarded the Davis Square Sheet Metal Co.

PRIMARY VOTE LESS THAN 40 PER CENT OF TOTAL REGISTRATION

Dr. Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Franklin E. Johnson, John H. Preston and Mrs. Annie D. Donovan Nominated for School Board—Results of Councilor Contests

While the vast majority of Lowell people went about their usual daily pursuits yesterday, approximately 12,000 fellow-citizens exercised their voting franchise and expressed preferences as to councilor and school committee nominees. The vote cast represented not more than 40 per cent. of the total registration and established a low-interest mark in local politics. So light was the vote that although the polls did not close until 8 p. m. the last precinct returns reached city hall shortly before 10:30 o'clock and thus ended a day marked only by apathy.

The primaries resulted in the nomination of Dr. Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Franklin E. Johnson, John H. Preston and Mrs. Annie D. Donovan for the school board and the following councilors in the five wards in which there were contests: Ward 1, Frank K. Stearns, Frank J. Tobin; ward 2, Louis J. Lord, David Dickson; ward 3, Frederick A. Sadler, J. Eugene Mullin; ward 4, Daniel P. Moriarty, John F. Gookin.

By declaration of the board of election commissioners the following nominations were made in the four wards in which no contests developed. Ward 2, Eugene A. Fitzgerald, Frank McShannon; ward 3, Joseph A. N. Chretien; ward 4, Arthur Genest; ward 5, Arthur B. Chadwick, Edgar P. Doherty.

The first two or three precincts to come in definitely established the nomination of Dr. Slaughter, Mr. Johnson and John H. Preston, but the fight for fourth place between Mrs. Donovan, Cornelius Sullivan and R. F. Preston continued for some time before the first named pulled away to a safe lead.

Despite the fact that such a small vote might result in several overruns there were no upsets in the pre-primary "dopes" as held by those fairly close to political circles. The nomination of the present councilors, Frank K. Stearns, Frederick A. Sadler, Daniel P. Moriarty and Thomas McFadden was

FORBES PASSES LIE TO MORTIMER

Former Director Puts New
Thrills Into Senate Veterans'
Investigation

Flatly Contradicts the Testimony of Several Previous Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Pleading out details of his denial of the charges against him, former Director Charles R. Forbes of the Veterans' bureau, put new thrills into the senate veterans' investigation today by flatly contradicting the testimony of several previous witnesses.

He passed the lie direct to Elias H. Mortimer, of Philadelphia, who had told the investigating committee that under Forbes' administration, confidential information was furnished certain contractors regarding proposed hospital sites.

"If Mortimer states that," said the former director, "he states that as a lie."

Then he turned to Mortimer, who was seated at a table with the committee counsel and exclaimed:

"You laugh."

Chairman Reed of the committee interposed.

"You are testifying to the committee," said the chairman, "and it is not necessary for you to address other persons."

HEALTH CONFERENCE AT NORMAL SCHOOL

A conference on School Hygiene was held at the Normal school today under the joint auspices of the state department of education and the state department of public health. The program was devoted especially to the subjects of nutrition and mouth hygiene.

The conference opened at 8:30 o'clock this morning. Burr Jones, supervisor of elementary education, state department of education, presided. Carl Schneider, physical education director of the state department of education, gave an interesting talk and demonstration on "How We May Detect and Correct Posture Defects." He emphasized the fact that exercises to correct such deformity, especially in an over-worked child, do more harm than good. "Often a good rest is the one and only cure for such ailment," said Mr. Schneider.

Miss Lou Lombard, health instructor in nutrition, state department, gave recipes for the preparation of body-building foods. Her topic was "Nutrition As It Relates to the Health of the School Child."

"Methods of Teaching Health" were

SEEKING THE COAST A LA '40

Tourists between Seattle and San Diego are getting quite a shock these days. Along the highway, they are coming across a covered wagon, jogging along at a snail's pace. But it holds its own on the road. For its occupants are women, save one little boy. They're Mrs. Metcalf Shaw, her daughters, Miss Gertrude Metcalf Shaw and Mrs. Marion Munter, and Baby Jack Munter, all of Seattle. San Diego is their destination. It is a lot more fun "caravanning" by wagon than by auto, they say.

Primary Vote Less Than 40 Per Cent Continued

conceded weeks ago and in practically every case it was not difficult to pick their opponents. Although Donald M. Cameron withdrew from the ward 3 fight, leaving the field to six candidates, the nomination of Louis J. Lord and David Dickson was in no manner a surprise.

The results in Ward 1 where Stearns, with a vote of 599 led Hubin by 56 votes, with McCann, the third candidate getting 236 votes, set the stage for a hard fight there on election day. Dec. 4. McCann's strength as shown yesterday was not enough to say about the final outcome, although the ward undoubtedly will poll a heavier vote three weeks hence.

Councilor Sullivan's tremendous lead over J. Eugene Mullin in Ward 4 is as good as reelection. The present incumbent polled 420 votes against 293 for Mullin and 195 for Shea.

The vote given Councilor Daniel F. Moriarty in Ward 5 also was an indication of his return to the council for two years. With his total of 647 he showed more than the combined strength of his two opponents, although John P. Chalkin, the other nominee, will not allow a walkaway.

From present indications it looks as if Louis J. Lord and David Dickson will stage a merry tussle in Ward 3 with the former holding the balance of power in two precincts and the latter sure of a big advantage in the third.

In Ward 3 Councilor Thomas McFadden, up for reelection, will be opposed by Peter P. McMenimen, a ward councilor in 1922. McFadden's lead yesterday was clear-cut and he, at least, approaches the election with the cards running in his favor.

The first precinct returns received at city hall last night were from Ward 1. Precinct 1 at 8 o'clock. From then until 10:30 reports came in steadily, until Ward 3, Precinct 1, pulled down the curtain and pinned it with a constellation of stars that spelled "Apathy."

Red Cross First Aid Special Car No. One Demonstrating in 48 Railroad Centres

Upper—Lecture by surgeon and practical demonstration inside Red Cross Car.
Lower—Railway workers after instruction showing how to handle stretcher cases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Scheduled promptly for a five months' safety campaign, the American Red Cross railway car, equipped to give first-aid instruction, has experienced so general a demand for demonstrations that the work of this No. 1 car is reaching very large audiences everywhere, according to reports from Major M. J. Shields, Red Cross head representative, and Dr. W. A. Hedges, in charge of the car's staff of surgeons and assistants.

The tour started from Philadelphia late in July and will end at St. Louis December 21, making stops at 48 railroad centers. The months of August and September the car covered 956 miles. At 120 meetings demonstrations of first aid were attended by 15,172 persons. The average audience was 150, and while railway men predominated, representatives of nearly all professions and industries were present to watch the expert Red Cross "crew" do its work.

How the interest has developed in this Red Cross plan of extending first-aid instruction is evident in the co-operation of school authorities, county health officers and civic clubs, in Ohio, reports state, as a result of the appearance of this first-aid car clubs are organizing classes so as to give township the benefit of this Red Cross course.

The large industries—steel, rubber, wool, lumber, dye works and others—and public service corporations, such as telephone, electric, gas and street railway companies, are advising their employees to attend the first-aid exhibitions at Car No. 1. Major Shields declares that never in his seven years' experience in this service have the city firemen and police, firemen, high school students, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts appeared in such large numbers as at the car meetings this year.

This traveling school of first aid is blazing the trail in a determined effort to reduce the annual 15,000 accidental deaths annually in the United States, more than 35,000 of which are credited to the railway and mechanical occupations. The car contains a lecture room seating 50 persons and is so arranged that it can be quickly turned into a hospital for 50 patients. It has living quarters for the surgeons and attendants, and is equipped with emergency supplies of food, medicines, blankets, stretchers and first-aid materials.

In seven years the Red Cross first-aid cars have covered 82 railroads, travelled 205,000 miles, held 5000 first-aid demonstrations and reached more than 1,000,000 persons. The railroads have placed every facility at the disposal of the Red Cross for this humane service which is taking to the people simple and practical lessons in saving human life. The Baltimore and Ohio system is co-operating in the present instruction tour by arranging for the entire schedule to cover the company's own lines. The work of this car is influencing enrollment of many hundreds of workers in the Red Cross whose annual campaign or roll call is taking place throughout the world from November 11 to November 29.

COLD WEATHER SERVICE FOR AUTOISTS

In no other activity is the change of the seasons so marked as it is in automobile driving and to the various needs of each season the owner or driver of an automobile who anticipates these needs and gets adequately prepared for them is the one who will have the maximum of service with the least expense.

Every owner should get in touch with "The Boston Auto Supply" for their cold weather needs as the management of this concern is announcing in their advertisement in today's Sun a varied list of aids that can be purchased at prices that are hard to beat.

Dr. C.C. Robinson

Have you ever stopped a moment to consider that almost everything in life, customs and habits changes except the use and misuse of the old-fashioned neighborhood remedies?

The cure for earache is clearly one of these. The ear plug of cotton, usually accompanied by the "dropping in" of sweet oil and kerosene, in spite of all that shall ever be said or written against it, will be continued. Toasted onions and hosts of similar substances will no doubt be used to the end of time.

Whatever the cause or remedy, earache requires careful treatment to afford relief. Neuralgia is rarely, if ever, the cause of earache. Careful examination by a physician can alone determine the real cause. Beware of "ear-drops" for relief. If you try a number and are still one affords relief, that's it. I mean, look out for it.

Earache is caused by scratching or by irritation and infection of the auditory canal. This slight infection may produce a small swelling which causes temporary pain. The scratching and infection in most cases are the result of amateur attempts to remove ear-wax. Sometimes, when this ear-wax has been tightly pressed against the drumhead of the ear, earache will result, but not usually.

Acute earache may be caused by catarrh. This so-called catarrh is a disease of the drum-cavity. It is very common in children who are not properly cared for and sometimes is the cause of running ear and small blisters on the drumhead. Slight deafness will also result from this.

Earache may also be caused by nasal discharges used improperly. Violent or improper nose blowing sometimes carries fluid where it irritates the ear.

No remedy is more useful or easy to apply in slight cases of earache than boiled water cooled down to a temperature the ear can stand, about 125 degrees Fahrenheit. The ear drops only give heat and hot water can do it better. Protect the ear carefully from external influences. Use a night cap if you wish; it will do no harm.

Severe cases of earache are not for the layman to fuss with. Call your physician, as it may be a serious complication.

might have stayed on indefinitely had his life been lengthened another span. While his heart was in his church and his success was that of his people, he found time for many things outside of this sphere.

As chaplain of Kilwinning lodge of Masons he was called upon to officiate often and for years he was invited to participate in the annual Elks' services of memorial. His broad-mindedness, his willingness to take a man as he found him and to see the best in him rather than the worst were attributes of his character which were once apparent to those who valued and enjoyed his acquaintance and friendship. A keen student of history and politics he was vitally interested in all things which tended to better the community in which he lived. He believed in Lowell, he loved the city and the city reciprocated in kind.

Rev. Dr. Fisher was born at Providence, April 10, 1849, the son of Nehemiah H. and Frances C. Fisher. He attended the public schools in that town and later set out to make a living. The manufacture of shoes attracted him to Brockton, but shortly afterwards he felt the call to the ministry and took up his studies at St. Lawrence university, Canton, N. Y., where he received the degree of doctor of divinity. He came to Lowell in 1895 and was installed as pastor of the First Universalist church. There for 28 years he worked and labored and gave deeply of his time and interest in the affairs of the city.

In addition to his Masonic affiliations, which included Mount Herob Royal Arch chapter, Ahmasset council and Elks' commandery, he was a member of the chamber of commerce, Lowell Advertising club and Lowell Ministerial association. He also was

MAYOR EXPRESSES SORROW OF CITY

Mayor John J. Donovan today learned with deep regret of the death of Rev. Caleb E. Fisher and paid him sincere tribute in the following comment:

"It is with deep regret that I learn of the death of Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D.D., pastor of the First Universalist church of this city. He was a man true to the principles of the gospel he preached and one who enjoyed the confidence of the people of the entire city. He was a tireless worker and one who, in his 28 years of service in this city, ministered to the people regardless of race, creed or nationality."

"I had known Rev. Dr. Fisher for more than 20 years and respected him as a conscientious, zealous minister of the gospel. He was a man whose influence among his people is sure to be missed."

MINISTERS' UNION MEETS
A meeting of the Lowell Ministers' union was scheduled to be held at noon today at the Y.M.C.A. and among other things to be acted upon is the death of Rev. Dr. Fisher, for many years a member of the union.

EXPLAINED CODE OF GIRL RESERVES

At the meeting of the Tri-Hi club of the Y.W.C.A., which was held in the association building yesterday afternoon, Mrs. George Sturtevant spoke on the "Girl Reserves." In a general yet comprehensive manner, she explained the code of the Girl Reserves, taking it line for line and giving a short talk on the meaning of each line.

In connection with the Y.W.C.A. world week of prayer, Miss Fern Graden of the International Institute addressed a meeting this afternoon and took as her topic, "Bearing the Yoke."

Advertisers who use The Sun consistently get greater returns on the money invested than through any other Lowell newspaper. There's a reason. The Sun goes into more homes in Lowell and suburbs than any other (Lowell) paper and ninety per cent of Sun readers read no other Lowell newspaper.

MRS. VARNEY ADDRESSES EDUCATIONAL CLUB

At the regular meeting of the Educational club in Kitson hall of the Y.W.C.A., yesterday afternoon, Mrs. F. E. Varney, who was the principal speaker of the session, addressed the members on "My Travels to Washington and New York." She indicated that the purposes of the trip were, what the travelers would see, how they would learn from their observations, and the pleasure derived from it. Mrs. Varney described the places of interest and beauty which were visited including Yale college, the capitol building of New Jersey, and Wall Street.

During the course of the reading papers were read by Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. John Leveat, Mrs. Lees and Mrs. Wilde. Mrs. H. J. Marable was the accompanist of the afternoon.

The meeting was opened and presided over by Mrs. Elizabeth Leveat, while the program of the afternoon was under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Griffin. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Jessop. It was voted that two new members be admitted to the club and an application for membership in the organization was also received. A letter of thanks from the Boys' Work secretary of the Y.M.C.A., expressing the gratitude of the association for the 45 contributions by the Educational club, was read by the secretary, following which the meeting adjourned.

The speaker next Tuesday afternoon will be Mrs. E. H. Carney, who will speak on "The Stranger Within Our Gates." A meeting of the advisory board will be held next Tuesday afternoon previous to the regular club session.

Lowell Coke

Here's a man who has used Lowell Coke for the past eight years:

Horace B. Lang

Having used Lowell Coke for the last eight years exclusively for my house boiler, with the exception of one ton of another kind of coke, which clinkered badly, I can recommend it highly. There is no trouble in having it last over night, with no ashes to sift and at a less price than anthracite coal. I consider it the best fuel on the market.

STREET RAILWAY SNOW FIGHTING EQUIPMENT READY FOR BATTLE WITH OLD KING STORM

Lowell street railway snow-fighting equipment is ready for the annual struggle with old King Storm. Never in the history of the railroad has there been a more formidable collection of snow-plows and sweepers. The Eastern division, which has the most extensive equipment of rail and street-cleaning apparatus of the Lowell light-rail system, has just completed the final inspection of the snow-fighting equipment. ## Her Dream Realized -

EVERY young woman like Mrs. Houk before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete.

But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist.

To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. Houk's Personal Letter:

"I was of a nervous disposition and always had a tired, worn-out feeling. I would get sharp pains in my side when working too hard or when walking too much and sometimes I would have these awful dragged down feelings. I have had such troubles since I was a very young girl and had got very little relief from all the medicine I had taken, and one doctor told me that I would never have children unless I had an operation. I had heard a great deal about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it. By the time I had finished the fourth bottle I noticed a change in my health. We took a trip to California at this time and I kept on with the medicine. My health continued to improve and I now have a big, healthy baby boy six months old. I am not doing my own housework yet as I want to get good and strong first as it means a lot to my baby for me to be well while he is nursing. I have spoken highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends and I am more than willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial." Mrs. Jack Houk, 312 Tennessee St., Lawrence, Kansas.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE

suburban Reading division, open for regular traffic.

Inspection today of some of the latest devices for removing snow from railway lines on exhibition in the barns and yards of the Middlesex street headquarters, showed on track A, a new steel derrick car, all ready and fitted out for wide leveling of snow with a huge "nose" as the snow-poker.

The total equipment now on hand and in tip-top condition for service from plow point to rear end, consists of 14 large and powerful machines, including six sheer double-track plows of the Wason type, five sweepers of the rotary broom model and three car scrapers. The last apparatus to arrive late last week completed the program laid out by the division manager, and blizzards, while never welcome, have no terrors for the street railway men now.

The total number of pieces of snow-fighting equipment on wheels and power-driven last season were eleven. It is counted closely, but some of the age-encrusted eleven were badly racked by the winter's long siege.

Early last spring the first of the old reliable rail equipment used in sweeping and plowing off snow from the rights of way, was sent to the transportation repair shops in Chelsea, where the work of all division lines of the Eastern is now forwarded. The Lowell plows received a thorough overhauling. Manager McCormick says the actual cost of renovating the Lowell snow-battling equipment and preparing for the winter's campaign in this vicinity alone, was something more than $800, but he considers it money well expended.

All storm-hit motors were removed from the old-time plows, replaced by new and more powerful designs of lasting qualities. Many electric wires in the operating machinery of the big and little rail cleaners were reinsulated and new and badly needed bearings installed in important working parts.

Lowell division car commuters will see two new double-track types of snow plows hustling over local roads this season.

They are guaranteed to take care of any old storm up to New Brunswick or to Labrador size, and Manager McCormick believes that with all the other motive equipment just purchased and oiled up for the work ahead, Lowell streets will be kept open fairly easy this winter for ordinary traffic.

The new double-track plow and derrick of steel standing somewhat frantically on a new flat car, is something the local street railway division has never had before. Not until the coming winter will the local division have had any rail equipment capable of removing snow any great distance from the street rails on either side. This fact, coupled with the slow methods used by the city in keeping streets open where the car lines run, has resulted in thousands of serious traffic blockades, trucks and other vehicles being compelled to use the car tracks and getting in the right of way of the passenger cars.

When snow comes this winter, the street railway is prepared to handle most storms by keeping the new "leveler" working, thus assisting street traffic in general and keeping the rails a little free from congestion. The "snow leveler" is reported to be able to remove any amount of snow on the sides of the rails up to a distance of several yards.

Two additional winter service cars are on the impressive list of snow-fighters this season at the car barns, also—new Root track scrapers with compressed air attachments in latest design and easy handling action.

The handy scrapers are to be used probably exclusively, on the Lowell-Reading line in case of severe storms. It is important that this line be kept open, and the street railway division heads already have the promise of county and state authorities that they will assist in keeping this important state road in transit condition.

The total number of Wason double-track plows now stationed at the Middlesex street car barns for all snow-storm emergencies, is six. These are "shear" cutters, strong, almost new and with big motors.

The five sweepers have had new brushes installed, motors readjusted, and connecting machinery cleaned inside and out. The rotary brooms are large enough to clear many feet on each side of the rails and will easily remove all snow during small storms, when the new levelers will not necessarily be required.

LONDON
BY MILTON BRONNER
N.E.A. Service Writer

LONDON, Nov. 14.—Quite a row has been raised here because a bus conductor the other day, in helping an elderly woman board the vehicle, said: "Come on, Ma!"

Indignant women wrote to the newspapers about it, saying they thought the man should be dismissed for insolence, impudence and a few other sins, but the men all rallied strongly to the defense of the conductor.

Some of the busmen have a real sense of fun. The other day I saw an old woman hesitating about boarding. She wanted to be sure that the bus went near a certain "Rosemary Lane" (cockney for Lane). My busman promptly tugged her aboard, saying:

"Walk right into the office. We will have a conference about it."

Another time an American woman spanned on the step as if ready to jump off, as the bus approached her stop. The ponderous bus was trundling along about 30 miles an hour. The busman, who had sized her up, put a restraining hand on the American's arm, saying:

"Better wait till it stops, Miss. You are swift in your country, but we are not so slow ourselves."

The joke is on King Haakon of Norway. A law there limits consumption of strong drink. And for some time the public has been desperately working to find the place where booze was cycled.

One day the police discovered where the liquor was stored. It was in the cellar of the villa that Haakon has at Bygdø. They not only confiscated the booze, but arrested one of the king's servants as an accomplice of the smugglers.

They had gone on in safety for months because the last place the police would suspect was the palace of the king himself!

Peculiarly circus has just been labeled "the Scentsman's client," which requires a little explanation. "Cinema" is English for "movie." And the Scentsman is the butt of all English jokes about people who are close with their money.

Peculiarly circus is the only place in London, where there are lots of illuminated, flashing, electric signs. Therefore it is a sort of free show.

As a result of the recent marriage of Lady Louise Mountbatten to the crown prince of Sweden, I have just heard a yarn that is so good I ought to be true, if it isn't a war-time story.

An English doctor, newly attached to a base hospital in France, was waiting along the corridors. Down on her knees, he noticed a rather plain-looking woman in nurse's uniform. She was scrubbing the floor.

The doctor said: "I hear that a kinswoman of the queen is working here. What kind of a person is she?" "Oh, just an ordinary woman like myself," said the nurse, who went on scrubbing. She was Lady Louise herself.

THE BRITISH CRISIS

The protection issue has reached a sudden crisis in England where Premier Baldwin has had the courage to appeal to the country on the tariff policy as a means of providing employment for the large number of people now idle in Great Britain.

For over a hundred years, protection has been under the ban in England and it will require strong leadership to overcome the prejudice against it, not only in England, but in Scotland and the adjoining islands. The conditions under which the parliament is to be dissolved, however, put the question in a new light. We do not believe that Premier Baldwin will attempt to impose a tariff on foodstuffs, but he does intend to raise a tariff wall against the importation of manufactured products that can be produced in England.

This election issue may prove popular among the people who have long been suffering from unemployment and idle factories. They have tried every remedy possible without success; and while pointing to the importation of foreign products that might be turned out by home industries, it may be possible to convince them that a protective tariff will enable the factories to start up on full time and to call in the idle men who have been walking the streets for two years and living on the weekly dole meted out by the government.

Against the protective policy former Premier, Asquith and Lloyd George have united. This means that the old liberal party will come to the front again under very able leadership. Lloyd George, realizing that it may be too soon for him to seek a return to power, has expressed a willingness to work under Mr. Asquith as leader, putting him forward as a candidate for the premiership. This union of two men who are undoubtedly the ablest and most prominent leaders in England, has set the stage for one of the greatest political battles that England has seen for many a year.

It is quite surprising with what facility the British parliament can be dissolved and a new government elected. The dissolution is to take place this week, and the general election on December 4. That will allow but a short time for the campaign; yet it will undoubtedly be one of the hottest in record. All the great statesmen of the past century can be quoted in favor of free trade; and it can be shown also that the repeal of the corn laws as early as 1846 saved the nation from a serious famine. On the other hand, it will be pointed out that protection is the fixed policy by which the industries of the United States have attained prosperity, and that free trade having failed as the national policy of Britain, there is no other alternative but to adopt the protective policy or else let the factories remain idle.

The election contest will be watched with much interest on this side of the Atlantic. Lloyd George has attained much prestige through the success of his visit to the United States; and it would not be surprising should the conservatives be beaten that he would again become premier. He is more resourceful in politics and probably also more popular with the people than is Mr. Asquith. It is true that the British public got tired of him soon after the war, believing that he was a dexterous politician rather than a great statesman. He had overlooked reverses and insults even to his administration that would not have been tolerated by any of his predecessors without a dissolution of parliament. He clung to power, however, with such tenacity that the people finally began to despise him and forced him out. It is becoming evident, however, that he is the greatest politician if not the greatest statesman in England; and at this time as during the war he may be the only man who can meet the emergency.

ZERO MILESTONE NEEDED

Where is our central point from which distances to other towns and cities should be measured? Some would say city hall, others the Sun building in the business center of the city. But seriously some such point should be fixed. The national capital has a zero milestone from which distances north, south, east, and west are measured. Every other city should also have a fixed central point from which outward measurements should start. The city in some directions is about three miles wide and when we see a sign in a neighboring town marked 5 or 10 miles to Lowell, we are naturally asked whether it is to the nearest Lowell line or to the central point in Lowell such as the city hall or postoffice.

It is a well known fact that many of the advertising signs which give the distance along the highways are often very inaccurate. A zero milestone is very necessary, therefore, in order to have road signs indicate the exact distance to or from Lowell as computed from a central point, rather than from the city line. Let us follow the Washington idea and have a zero milestone from which all such computations outward and inward can be made. City Engineer Kearney could readily fix such a point.

OPPOSED TO McADOO

Tammany leaders are not afraid that McAdoo will run away with the party and the nomination. The McAdoo forces, lacking the confidence that they will be able to get two-thirds of the delegates, are getting for the abolition of the old two-thirds rule by which the Democrats have nominated in the past. If the rule were abolished, a mere handful of well organized men might stampede the convention; but the matter will have to come up first in the national committee and next in the open convention. Had the rule been abolished in the Baltimore convention in 1916, Woodrow Wilson would not have been nominated. The Tammany leaders are opposed to McAdoo and to the nomination by a majority; and hence it is not likely that the chance will be made.

THE RECENT FIRES

We are having so many fires that citizens are beginning to think that a fire is active in our midst. That is the main suspicion when a series of fires occur in quick succession. Although there is no evidence of incendiarism in the recent fire, it is reported that the insurance companies are becoming quite suspicious. Only the good work of the fire department has prevented the spread of the recent fires to the proportions of a conflagration.

Double Disappointment

The sage was remarking and finally broke the silence. "When a young man escorts a girl home there is a long pause at the door-step." "Wait!" he can hear her. "He is wondering if he can kiss her." "Encourage her, the other," "She is wondering if he is going to try." "Both are usually disappointed," declared the grouch.

Get Living by Dying

During a discussion at a meeting of the historical society upon the night consideration attached to life by uncivilized nations, a speaker mentioned that in China if a man were condemned to death he could easily hire a substitute to die for him; and the dealer went on, "I believe many poor fellows get their living by acting as substitutes in that way."

Selling the House

I did not mind the thought so much. To sell the house was fine! All houses were the same to me. They had all been built by the same people. And I had it up to me that passersby could hardly fail to see that there was a house for sale. And I had it up to me that passersby could hardly fail to see that there was a house for sale. And I had it up to me that passersby could hardly fail to see that there was a house for sale.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

That imposing stone figure created as a perpetual memorial to the doughboys who left "The Acre" for the World War and gave up their lives for their country, is attracting much attention from strangers visiting Lowell. Many people in surrounding towns, who have seen hundreds of photographs of the memorial, have been anxious to inspect the figure standing in the little square beyond the North Common, and have visited the neighborhood daily on Sundays in large numbers. Only last Monday afternoon, I counted seven automobiles filled with men, women and children, who had drawn up in the square facing the figure of the doughboy. Every eye appeared to be turned on the memorial in solemn admiration. I am told that many Sabbath day motorists have also driven around through "The Acre" to inspect the memorial. It is certainly worth seeing.

Two Brazilian monkeys were recently given to a local man who is well known for his activities in behalf of animal welfare. On Halloween this man invited to his house two popular young ladies for the purpose of inflicting them on two Brazilian gentlemen. The young ladies were delighted and arrived at the house in good time. Imagine their surprise and disappointment when the two gentlemen were nothing more than the two monkeys! The man, however, has learned that it is not safe to monkey with some girls.

The regular yearly warning to the public from the office of the postmaster general in Washington has been issued in regard to the proper manner of mailing presents in order to facilitate the handling during the Christmas rush. He has enumerated conditions for the public to observe as follows: Precious postage stamps on all mail matter, address all mail plainly and completely, giving the street address if possible, pack all articles carefully in strong and durable containers, wrap securely, but do not seal packages except when bearing printed labels reading: Contents, merchandise, fourth class mail. This package may be opened for inspection if needed. Packages may be marked "Do not open before Xmas." Valuable parcels should be insured and registered. Do not include letters with the articles mailed as this would subject the entire package to better postage. Written greeting cards such as "A Merry Xmas, or a Happy New Year" may be included with fourth class mail on parcel post.

They preferred against a killed a farmer. What they saw was a cow with her front legs tied together so that she could scarcely move. The owner told the officers that he was unaware of any cruelty to animals, as such a practice was customary in his native land. The cows were released from the farm.

PARKER LECTURE CONCERT THURSDAY

Much interest is being shown all over the city in the Parker Lecture concert next Thursday evening when Charles Wakefield Cadman and Princess Talarina appear in joint piano and vocal recital.

To thousands all over America who admire "From the Land of the Sky-Blue Water" and "At Dawning," Charles Wakefield Cadman as a song writer needs no introduction. Such great artists as Nordica, Bonci, McCormack, Charnick, Gluck, Alda, Blum, Williams, Nielsen and scores of others, have long made these and other Cadman songs household possessions, and when it is known that his Indian songs have been translated into the Russian language and some of his ballads issued in French, Spanish and Italian, some idea of the greatness of this composer may be gained.

To the well informed musical lover and critic, the name of Cadman is also identified with a big movement for American opera and chamber music. The great success of his American opera "Shanewis" (The Robin Woman) at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York for two consecutive seasons is still fresh in the public mind. He is also finishing a new opera called "A Witch of Salem" based on the New England historical episode of 1692, which will be heard in New York in the near future. His new orchestral work "Thunderbolt Suite" consisting of five numbers has just been issued by his London publishers, Boosey and Company, and is already scheduled for performance by many large symphony orchestras here and in Europe. Among the first to use the work will be Sir Henry Wood and his London orchestra.

Tsianhua (pronounced Chi-ne-na) translated "Wild Flower" is a Cherokee-Creek Indian maiden, born in the state of Oklahoma. She has always retained the individuality of her race in the matter of dress, invariably wearing a dress of beaded leather, moccasins and a beaded band about her head. While a very young girl, it was discovered she possessed unusual musical talent. Later she studied with some of the foremost professors and private tutors in the east. After eight years training she stands today, a noble example of her race, educated and cultured to the highest possible degree.

My mother, friend, P. Rapone, known to most of his customers as "Jumbo," was much enthused with the recent accounts in The Sun concerning the latest Italian movements in this country. For the past 15 years, Mr. Rapone has been actively identified with Italian questions in this city. He says that Italian opinion is as changed as the weather, that is among the interesting class. In speaking of the recently reported invasion of the "Black Menace of Fascism" in Lowell, Mr. Rapone said that such a thing was impossible, but that the Italian people would listen to a forceful speaker on the subject and side with him, and then on hearing an anti-Fascist, their opinion would just as readily turn the other way. Mr. Rapone is interested just now in things other than politics. He is an accomplished musician and has composed several marches and songs.

UKRAINIAN CHOIR HAS UNIVERSAL APPEAL

As the beauty of a flower will awaken a response in the heart of the humblest, so the appeal of the Ukrainian folk-music, as sung by that splendid choir of 40 voices, under the direction of Alexander Koshetz, which has been delighting the western world for the past four years, is to the least musically educated among its audiences, as well as to the musical sophisticates.

This is primarily because the songs which the Ukrainians sing are the songs of the common people, a record in music of their simple joys and sorrows, their loves and hates, wars and wealings, their festival pleasures and laments of faith—in short, of all those experiences and emotions which are the universal heritage of the human race, and which yet have seldom found so lovely an expression as through the songs and the singing of the Ukrainians.

The members of the Ukrainian National chorus were chosen from the most expert and talented singers of that singing nation, and represent the ultimate selections from 25,000 contestants, recruited from the 150 singing societies of the Ukraine, several of which have memberships of several thousands.

The Ukrainian folk-music runs the entire gamut of the national temperament, from the grave to gay, and the great chorus which is spreading this local beauty through many lands achieves these shades of expression by means of difficult feats of tone-stopping, rhythmic rising and fading, receding waves of singing tenderness, or dynamic bursts of magnificent force.

THRILLS APLENTY IN "POWDER RIVER"

"Powder River," the war picture to be shown by Walker-Rogers post, V.F.W., at the Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 20 and 21, promises a thrill that even David W. Griffith's master productions have been unable to register.

These pictures, 13 reels of them, preceded by 150 feet of confiscated German submarine pictures, are the only official and authentic ones that ever have been released by the war department at Washington and are shown only by veterans' associations.

The pictures were taken in France in the midst of real action by members of the U. S. Signal Corps and have been assembled so that they form the complete history of America's part in the World War, vividly portrayed without the gruesome features one might expect in such real life scenes when men were giving their lives by thousands and the rivers of France ran blood. Every division that saw service in France is shown in action against the Hun.

Many Lowell boys who were overseas with the Yankee Division and other fighting units are clearly seen doing their bit in the fight for the freedom of the world.

Tickets may now be purchased at Liggett's, 87 Merrimack street, or from members of Walker-Rogers post.

Berton Bralley's Daily Poem The Same Old Moon

The moon looks down on you and me
And we look upward at the moon;
It is the same old moon we see
Beneath which lovers used to spoon,
With silly words and tender kisses,
In days of Circé and Ulysses.

The same old moon is looking down,
But all those lovers, where are they?
Princess and Prince, milkmaid and clown,
"The wind has blown them all away";
They lived and loved, knew weal and laughter,
Died—but more lovers followed after!

The same moon looks down from above,
But it is up so high and far
It sees the lovers making love,
Yet can't distinguish who they are,
And thinks that still, the ages through,
The same old lovers bill and coo.

And if the moon, by chance, could hear,
It still would hold the same opinion;
For age by age and year by year,
In all love's magical dominion,
The words and kisses are the same
As when the first pair felt the flame.

The same old moon is in the sky,
The same thrill in each lover's breast;
Except, of course, that you and I
Are different from all the rest—
Was it my fancy made me think
I saw the old moon slyly wink?

16 Labor Organizations Discuss Legislative Proposals at Washington Meeting

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Meeting here today at the call of Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, heads of 16 railroad labor organizations took up for discussion, legislative proposals for which they may ask consideration at the coming session of congress. A legislative sub-committee of the union officials headed by D. B. Robertson, chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, had prepared a tentative report for submission and action by the larger gathering.

The chief proposal prepared for the consideration of union officials involves a change in the labor sections of the present transportation act, which would virtually abolish the railroad labor board.

MEETING OF GRACE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB

The Men's club of the Grace Universalist church held their regular monthly meeting and supper last night at 8.30 o'clock in the parish hall. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Robert Hoops of Melrose, who described present day conditions in China.

He described the government and educational institutions of the country, and remarked on the fact that there are colleges over 2000 years old there, a little older than our modern civilization. The trouble with China he declared to be that of standing still while other nations progressed. This condition of suspended animation is nearly at an end, however, and he believes the day is coming when progress will once more begin and China will be one of the great powers of the world, and a much greater one than Japan.

A short business meeting preceded the address. With Dr. Howard W. Smith, president of the club, presiding, and several new members were proposed for admission.

"PADLOCK" PROVISION OF DRY ACT UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Encouraged by their victory in federal court yesterday when Judge Thompson upheld the legality of the "padlock" provision of the Volstead act which brands a law-violating saloon as a nuisance, state and government officials were preparing today to institute similar proceedings against a number of Philadelphia saloons against which they claim to have evidence of illegal sales of liquor.

Judge Thompson's decision was in the case of six Sanyukill county saloons, three of which were ordered "padlocked" for one year and the others enjoined from further violations of the prohibition law.

DR. JAMES H. ROONEY SELLS THREE HOUSES

Preliminary papers have been signed by Dr. James H. Rooney transferring ownership of two new colonial houses, one in Belvidere and one in the Highlands.

In Belvidere, the transfer in two and one-half story building located at 50 Oakland street. The house is of colonial type with all modern conveniences. The property includes 5000 feet of land.

In the Highlands, the transfer includes the property at 46 Butman road. The house is new and the land involved totals 5800 square feet.

The sale was made through the office of R. M. Humphrey, Hildreth bldg. The purchasers intend to occupy their new homes in the near future.

MORE RED LIGHTS ON CENTRAL BRIDGE

There were red lights on Central bridge again last night when the second hole in as many days made its appearance in the center of the span on the outgoing railroad track. The other break occurred last Sunday afternoon on the incoming track near the Centralville approach to the bridge and was repaired the following day.

Last night's hole was of approximately the same proportions as that of Sunday, six inches square, and was clean through. A watchman stood guard all last night and this morning. The cement mixture, as a "whole," doesn't look any too good.

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN COMING

Charles Wakefield Cadman who with Princess Tetanina is to give a joint recital at the Memorial Auditorium tomorrow evening in the Parker course, occupies a distinctive place in American music by virtue of the publicity he has given to the folk songs of the American Indians. This has been accomplished during the past four years through concerts and recitals upon this subject, for which he is an unquestioned authority. This side of his work is exemplified in the all-American program to be presented tomorrow evening.

Cadman has also written a most successful violin, cello and piano trio in D major which has been widely played by chamber music organizations over the country; while his most serious piano work, a Sonata in A Major, has been widely recognized by critics and public. He has been widely represented by his choral compositions "The Sunset Trail," "The Morning of the Year," and "The Vision of Sir Launfal." The composer has more than three hundred published works to his credit. These include the simplest teaching pieces for children, part-songs for mixed, male and female voices; piano music of various grades; organ, violin and cello numbers (arrangements and transcriptions); a dozen artistic song cycles, and scores of songs. Cadman is more fortunate than most composers in that it is possible for him to adequately present his own compositions in concert. He has a vigorous style and technique suited to his own piano numbers and songs, and according to the critics a convincing and colorful tone-production.

CLUB CITIZENS-AMERICANS

The first of a series of dances at club Citizens-Americans by that organization was held last evening with a record crowd of young folks attending. Music for the dancing was furnished by a local orchestra and a general good time was enjoyed by all present. The committee in charge of the series is composed of chairman, E. M. Perland, assisted by Raoul Dionne, Lucien Lussier and Edouard Lafontaine.

CHALIFOUX'S THURSDAY A. M. SPECIALS

BOWLING

Mike Castle, who is to meet Johnny Sheppard in the main bout of the Moody cup card on Thursday night, is training daily in the Ward Five club. Local sportsmen and reporters from the down river city declare the clever Mike is in fine condition.

Castle recently fought a slashing battle with Johnny Harko in Manchester, and while he lost the verdict he went down fighting. Castle came out of the battle without any serious marks of combat and is ready to continue his whirlwind efforts here.

Shepard, who has created quite a sensation since his return from the west, is working out in Woburn, under the direction of Paddy Minnehan, who has been in the city for some time, stopping Paddy Owens in Ayer's rounds. He showed bewildering speed and hitting ability and his previous complete outlandishness in boxing has been completely forgotten. Large delegations from Lawrence and Woburn are coming up to see him and the match is attracting much interest locally, a banner crowd is expected.

There is also considerable interest in the semi-final which will take place on Tuesday, the professional debut of Timmy Fadden, who will meet Young Stanton of South Boston, a member of Charley Meade's stable. Fadden is working out over the hills in the gymnasium of the Westside and was given a good start in his final bow as a pro.

King comes of an athletic family. His father was a member of a Chicago go league team in the good old days while the brother, Eddie, formerly captain of Amherst Argyle and later sent to the Philadelphia Athletics, Eddie is now managing the Gardner team in Mass. Twilight league. Another brother, Ray, plays with New Haven of the Eastern league.

BEACON SIGNAL KNOCKED OVER

terday morning by either an automobile or by persons with malicious intentions. The light was so badly damaged that it has been sent to the manufacturing plant for repairs. Billings police are inclined to believe the beacon was deliberately overturned as the sides of the light bear no marks of any kind and the police say few automobiles traveling at even high speeds could overturn the beacon by striking it.

LOWELL SHOEMEN ARE OPTIMISTIC OVER FUTURE OUTLOOK

Confess, However, That Prosperity is a Fickle Dame—
Most Lowell Factories Are Running on Good
Schedules With Full Complement of Help

Optimism—a lot of it—prevails today in a majority of Lowell's shoe industries. The oldest factory in Lowell—operating continuously for 34 years—is on full week's running time and far from worrying over the next seasonal run prospects, although immediate business is not normal.

Four more factories with extensive, up-to-date annual outputs and prepared with new and enticing lines comprising more than 75 samples of women's "fash" McKays, are ready to swing in smoothly on the 1924 Easter trade orders, due in about three weeks from today. Steady weekly runs are now the rule, but only one or two local factories find present business to date worth bragging about.

The outlook for new orders for the coming advance calls for new footwear is emphatically promising, particularly in women's, misses and children's designs. Styles in the former line are due for new departures from old lines, as usual as styles change rapidly three or four times in 12 months and not a local shoe manufacturer is ever behind hand in providing samples for the latest selection counters.

Watson Offers Many Samples

One factory showcase on Middlesex street exhibits six shelves of brand new Lowell-made footwear in women's medium priced lines—the C. V. Watson Co. Three weeks from today the contract order selections will be made by "the trade" and good business is confidently expected right through the fall and winter runs up to early spring.

Lowell factories running regularly on medium lines in boys and girls' footwear say the markets are stiffer on these lines than on the men's grades. The calls for women's fancy "pumps" with the open-work front and fancy straps—some of them brightly headed and beaded in silver, gold and wanted materials in the new novelty demands—are increasing.

Lowell an Ideal Location

The steadily growing number of new shoe manufacturing concerns locating permanently in Lowell proves the stout contention of chamber of commerce "new business" boosters and the claim of local business "activists" in general, that this city today is an ideal spot for the spread of the medium priced shoe manufacturing industry in preference to any other New England city.

More than 1000 shoe workers of both sexes are today obtaining steady work on weekly "full time" in the general factories, large and small, located in convenient production and shipping centers of Lowell. All employees interviewed today are satisfied with their present locations and praise the class of expert operators on the good-sized payrolls.

Optimistic as to Future

Production in the Lowell factories the past few months has not been overloaded, of course, but reports that some of the shoemakers were simply marking time and running on slim payrolls, traveling the rounds of the local shoe world for several weeks are not quite true. While it is a fact that some of the Lowell manufacturers of high grades and mediums would be delighted to secure more stable business, there is a feeling of optimism today that will not soon. Not a single manufacturer interviewed by a Sun reporter today on a journey through the "shoe districts" felt that the markets for "future" were not promising.

There has been, indeed, a stronger movement in the industry in Lowell and other New England cities since the start of October. Salesmen are turning in better reports; plants are running full week time; manufacturers have been able to purchase raw materials at more equitable price figures owing to a disturbed and irregular wholesale market; shoe styles are changing again, and those Lowell manufacturers who have anticipated future new designs and produced prompt demands, are finding themselves stocked with fair orders for fall and winter runs up to the first of January, at least.

There are cheery messages from one or two of the largest Lowell manufacturers of women's and children's footwear. Most of the best firms in the shoeing line expect to handle these lines rather than men's wear, for competition in the latter highly specialized industry being a growing warmer every month while factories marketing only women's and children's shoes are finding the hold not crowded and fairly promising most of the time for profitable operation.

Future Market a Puzzle

Only two of the seven plants visited today by a Sun reporter showed evidence of marketing item in output activities. But none of these factories are running on part time, each operating regularly the usual five and one-half days, with wages as usual and about the same number of regular employees.

One shoe manufacturer said the future market was a puzzle. He had no real complaint to make, but the situation in shoe manufacturing circles for the moment is in some respects following the road traveled by the textile and other industries. It is "catching" in other parts of trade, too, and naturally the shoe manufacturers are hit by the same force that overhauled industrial activities after long, busy runs that proved so profitable.

Most of the local shoe industrial managers feel that orders will come in heavier later in the year. Just at this time, when calls for the Easter shoe styles are in the offing, there is a wait all along the novelty shoe line of "fash" for women, styles changing swiftly very often, as shoe dealers know. Factors like these keep the manufacturers on the anxious seat for fear that other makers will get in on the ground floor with ample styles samples first, and reap the reward in first orders.

Lagunas "Booked Solid"

The Lagunas Shoe company on Market street is doing thrice its amount of business in the manufacture of medium grade shoes this season and today there is plenty of optimism rampant in the private offices of George and Christos Laganas, treasurer and president, respectively, of this busy concern. Starting operations in Lowell only 15 months ago, the Laganas firm now occupies the entire space on three floors in the Market street building, and many new machines have been installed during the past six or eight months. Today there is no let-up in work and output, and the outlook is promising for futures, according to Christos Laganas.

This concern has orders booked solid for the coming fall and winter runs until next June. There has recently been some extra night work until 8 p. m. for male operators, and also Saturday afternoons on special orders, but never any curtailments. In fact, at present, the employees, male and female, number about 175. When the new run starts Jan. 1, there will be 225 men and women employed on orders already on the books for the Easter shoe trades. There has been some Cuban demand.

Between 60 and 70 feminine workers are on the Laganas payrolls. The working rooms are well lighted, sanitary and the help is excellent and well trained. The shoe manufacturing concern uses The Sun columns exclusively when advertising for new employees, always with prompt results and quickly obtaining trained workers who hold their jobs.

Men's Work Now the Product

The principal work order, and slated to continue until the end of the year, is on men's "do warts." When this contract is completed, the manufacture of men's shoes will be discontinued for the present, the women's shoe orders following in order for prompt delivery. There will be high and low heels on the new designs now agreed upon. No boots will be made. The men's kid cut leather are coming into favor heavily in the season to open soon.

Work continues steadily at the shoe factory that began operations in Lowell in the former H. W. Mawhinney plant and the headquarters of the former Federal Shoe company on Lane street. Full time is the rule, but operations are steady and there is no lively demand at present for additional output, although normal future business conditions are expected to give the manufacturers a busier time before the end of the year.

Other shoe factories reported quiet operations on regular schedules, with no "spreads" or heavy orders ahead, although demands are coming in regularly on a quiet market from large cities and districts where Lowell shoes are popular.

The L. H. Spaulding Co., 538 Broadway, is operating steadily, but no one here predicts "futures." Full time is the working rule, but predictions covering late fall and winter business are few and far between. It isn't pessimism and it isn't optimism, but there is no participation in any important branch and preparation for quick revival when the three weeks' waiting period for the Easter style manufacturers who have anticipated future new designs and produced prompt demands, are finding themselves stocked with fair orders for fall and winter runs up to the first of January, at least.

demands ends and full steam ahead orders follow.

Stover & Benn, 137 Fletcher street, distribute shoes from the Lowell headquarters, only, although listed in the directories as manufacturers. The company has shoe factories in North Abington and Lynn.

Pilling Co. "Shy as Usual"

The John Pilling Shoe company continues its regular activities without a let-up. Market conditions are not favorable for heavy outputs, but there is no pessimism in this shoe-shedded Lowell shoe manufacturing office, where able men conduct the business and keep the well known Lowell industry on its feet year in and year out. "The big building with 'Pillings' carved in granite over the main entrance," houses operation on usual schedules.

None of the executives care to predict what the business is to be next season. There is a growing demand for highest quality shoes for both boys and girls. These grades are the only ones turned out now at the Pilling factories. The uncertainty in the raw hide and finished leather markets has almost operations in some shoe factories, and, in turn, affects operating progress and programs of Lowell concerns.

The Pilling company's output today runs from 2500 to 3000 pairs average. At the C. V. Watson Co. plant on Middlesex street, optimism rules in high favor. About 75 men and a men are new on the payroll. No new help is desired for the time being, and during the next three weeks there will be only regular runs. At the end of that period the program of the Pilling shoe demand will be outlined and the Watson company will know where it stands in "futures."

The leaders of this thriving industry that now occupies two floors in the Purcell Lane building, expect an excellent fall and winter business. An inspection of the work books today indicated a good volume of output daily. Every bench was filled in the cleanly stitching and cutting rooms. The rooms for expert girl workers are ideally lighted.

Restaurant is Popular

New features at the Watson shoe are a restaurant of the "White House" variety, where meals are served at cost each noon. The shoe workers take full advantage of the innovation. The company now insures all employees free of charge. Contentment is evident in all the busy departments that were filled today with every machine running and emergency piles of cut leather prepared for the ladies' novelty McKays now being manufactured in fairly large quantities.

Operations were reported as quiet for this time of the year at the A. J. Foster Shoe Co., on Willis street. There were no predictions forthcoming here. It was evident that the same conditions affecting other Lowell shoe concerns were recognized here. Employment is on a full-week basis as usual.

Work at the American Hide & Leather company's Lowell plant continues on the well known reduced schedules with no indication of any immediate future spread from the summer operations. The situation here is as unending as usual. Just as it is in all leather markets and with raw concerns. One Lowell shoe manufacturer, equipped with late reports from all leather distribution centers, gave The Sun a short summary of conditions found by close inquiry, as follows:

"Sole leather continues very quiet and what movement there is to upper and lower is confined to small lot orders, mainly for immediate use. Tanners in general are proceeding on curtailed production scales as usual. Raw skins are comparatively easy."

"The shoe trade is active in spots. You will find some manufacturers of the lower grades merchandizing large quantities and running full tilt. That happens in one or two Lowell factories, where the demand is almost extraordinary for the low grades. One shop is busy; another slows down. Sales are somewhat irregular and cut. There has been a let-down in advance orders of high grade shoes for both men and women. Children's shoes are more active in Lowell shops and outside. The small shoe trade has been complaining of dull business. Packer hides are selling light and in small lots."

Sour Stomach

Medical experts agree that colds can be passed from one person to another, but they say that in order to "catch cold" your vitality must be lowered, you must be overworked, or weakened and run down and your power of resistance below normal. You can keep free from colds by keeping your strength up and no better tonic food medicine for this purpose than Father John's Medicine is known. It will enable you to throw off a cold and rebuild your health and strength because it is made of pure food elements which strengthen and build up new resisting power. Father John's medicine has had over sixty-eight years of success for colds, coughs and body-building. Adv.

trance, houses operation on usual schedules.

None of the executives care to predict what the business is to be next season. There is a growing demand for highest quality shoes for both boys and girls. These grades are the only ones turned out now at the Pilling factories. The uncertainty in the raw hide and finished leather markets has almost operations in some shoe factories, and, in turn, affects operating progress and programs of Lowell concerns.

The Pilling company's output today runs from 2500 to 3000 pairs average. At the C. V. Watson Co. plant on Middlesex street, optimism rules in high favor. About 75 men and a men are new on the payroll. No new help is desired for the time being, and during the next three weeks there will be only regular runs. At the end of that period the program of the Pilling shoe demand will be outlined and the Watson company will know where it stands in "futures."

The leaders of this thriving industry that now occupies two floors in the Purcell Lane building, expect an excellent fall and winter business. An inspection of the work books today indicated a good volume of output daily. Every bench was filled in the cleanly stitching and cutting rooms. The rooms for expert girl workers are ideally lighted.

New features at the Watson shoe are a restaurant of the "White House" variety, where meals are served at cost each noon. The shoe workers take full advantage of the innovation. The company now insures all employees free of charge. Contentment is evident in all the busy departments that were filled today with every machine running and emergency piles of cut leather prepared for the ladies' novelty McKays now being manufactured in fairly large quantities.

Operations were reported as quiet for this time of the year at the A. J. Foster Shoe Co., on Willis street. There were no predictions forthcoming here. It was evident that the same conditions affecting other Lowell shoe concerns were recognized here. Employment is on a full-week basis as usual.

Work at the American Hide & Leather company's Lowell plant continues on the well known reduced schedules with no indication of any immediate future spread from the summer operations. The situation here is as unending as usual. Just as it is in all leather markets and with raw concerns. One Lowell shoe manufacturer, equipped with late reports from all leather distribution centers, gave The Sun a short summary of conditions found by close inquiry, as follows:

"Sole leather continues very quiet and what movement there is to upper and lower is confined to small lot orders, mainly for immediate use. Tanners in general are proceeding on curtailed production scales as usual. Raw skins are comparatively easy."

Cough Was Getting the Best of Him
But He Got Rid of It Quickly

"I had a chronic cough for a long time, in fact it was getting the best of me. I could not find anything that would do me any good. A friend recommended MILK'S Emulsion. The third bottle cured the cough completely, made me healthy and well and I felt like a new man. Before taking your Emulsion I was down to 125 pounds and now I weigh 185 pounds. It doesn't seem possible that three bottles of your medicine would cause a man to gain 60 pounds but it is a fact."—Wm. Gilson R.F.D., No. 1, Cheeky, Tenn.

Mr. Gilson was fortunate in commencing to use MILK'S Emulsion when he did. A run-down system invites disease, MILK'S Emulsion costs nothing to try.

MILK'S Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action; it is a truly curative medicine—doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. MILK'S Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whose sickness has weakened it; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repelling the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved.

This is the only cod liver oil emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try MILK'S Emulsion under this guarantee—Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The MILK'S Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.—Adv.

ALL DRESSED UP AND NO PLACE TO GO

THEY'RE STILL TRAVELING

A. Y. Gowen and wife have a hard time getting their hearings on dry land. First, it was their two-year cruise around the world in "The Speejaaks," a 90-foot motor yacht. Then it was a trip to the orient. Here they are coming down the gang-plank of the Canadian Pacific liner, Empress of Russia, on their return. But this time, it was a business trip, Gowen explains.

ROTARIANS POSTED ON TO STORE SEIZED LIQUOR

WHAT'S DAD'S JOB

H. W. Gibson, Y.M.C.A. director of boys' work for the states of Massachusetts and Rhode Island, addressed the Rotary club at noon yesterday on "The Job of Being a Dad." He was introduced by Harold F. Howe, local secretary of the "Y," who was the chairman of today's meeting.

"A real healthy boy sums up life in two words, 'fun' and 'eat' and if he has plenty of each he considers life worth living," said Mr. Gibson. "A healthy boy craves action and must have an outlet for his energy, said the speaker, and the safest method of handling this impulse is encouragement of the constructive sense that every boy possesses. Concrete examples of this are home made radio sets and libraries in which all the volumes are selected by the boy himself."

"Every boy has a latent ability of some description, that only waits for development, and business firms are realizing this fact and carefully training youngsters for all the positions of importance, and any natural attitude is brought out by careful instruction. The finest way of training a young man is that of giving him responsibility, so that he will have to dig in and give his best, and will develop his sense of pride and loyalty to the firm through having a part in its operations."

"Boys go where you go and not where you tell them to go. That's why the devil is so overabundant," said Mr. Gibson, "and when we begin to realize that a boy's habits in life are formed by what he sees men do, we are going to be mighty careful how we conduct ourselves. It makes me everlastingly tired to hear a man rebuke his son for something he does himself seven days in the week."

DOOR STILL OPEN FOR AMERICAN HELP

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Although the door still is open for American helpfulness in the reparations problem, President Coolidge regards the latest move in that direction as having come definitely to an end.

The United States would find itself unable in the view of the president to participate in the reparations inquiry proposed by Premier Poincaré for the same reason that it declined to enter the investigation suggested by Great Britain. This reason is that the American government considers it useless and futile to make an inquiry which is hedged about by restrictions as to its scope.

COOLIDGE RETICENT ON TAX PLAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—Without committing himself either to approval or disapproval of the treasury tax revision program, President Coolidge today let it be known that he regards the proposal as a step toward opening the way for meeting the demand of the country for lower taxes.

Her Dreams Outrun Her Resources

BOSTON, Nov. 13.—The Musicians' league and the fund in memory of George Henry Howard, musician and composer, to aid needy musicians, of the country for which the will of Howard's widow provided, will not be established. Henry W. Packer, named as one of the executors of Mrs. Howard's estate, said that her dreams had outrun her resources. Her total estate, he said was less than $600. After the death of her husband, several years ago Mrs. Howard tried to eke out a living by dealing in real estate in this city, and when she made her will she believed she would leave sufficient money to establish a worthy memorial to her husband. Her dealings, however, were unsuccessful. She died recently and her will was filed for probate yesterday.

Former President of Bank Ends Life

PADUCAH, Ky., Nov. 13.—Frank N. Fisher, president of the Ohio Valley Fire & Marine Insurance Co., and ex-president of the Ohio Valley Trust Co., which closed its doors following an announcement of insolvency last week, shot and killed himself at his home here early today. Mr. Fisher was said to have been despondent following the failure of the bank and according to close friends had spoken of ending his life on several occasions.

Shot and Killed By Two Bandits

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—Richard F. Nagle, 45, of Columbus, Ohio, was shot and killed here early today by two bandits as he was driving towards Los Angeles from Culver City, with his brother Edward Nagle, a Culver City real estate man, who was slightly wounded. The bandits obtained $500, the proceeds of an American Legion carnival held at Culver City.

Three Lives Lost When Barge Sank

LEWES, Del., Nov. 13.—Word was brought here today of the foundering off Fenwick Island, Va., at 6 p. m., yesterday of the coal barge Marion O'Boyle, with the loss of three lives. Those dead are: James Matthew and his wife and daughter, negroes. The loss of the barge became known when Robert Curtis, Wisconsin county, Va., and Robert Taylor, Whitestone, Va., members of the crew, floated ashore on some wreckage and reported to the Fenwick Island coast guard crew.

EVERETT TRUE

SAW COBURN DIE

Mrs. O. L. Haymond of Cleveland narrowly escaped death when W. S. Coburn, leader in the Ku Klux Klan factional strife, was shot and killed in his office in Atlanta, Ga. One bullet from the gun of Phil E. Fox, held as Coburn's slayer, smashed a part of the desk at which she was sitting. Mrs. Haymond was in consultation with Coburn at the time relative to the settlement of an estate.

TO HEAR GERMAN REPRESENTATIVES

PARIS, Nov. 13. (By the Associated Press.)—The allied reparations commission today decided to hear representatives of Germany regarding the capacity of the reich to pay reparations. The date of the hearing will be fixed later.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS
WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—President Coolidge probably will deliver in person his message to congress regarding the capacity of the reich to pay reparations. The date of the hearing will be fixed later.

He considers it wise to continue the custom revived by Pres. Wilson, and continued by President Harding, although he is inclined to be guided largely by the desires of congress.

Predicts Startling Evidence in Trial of Fox

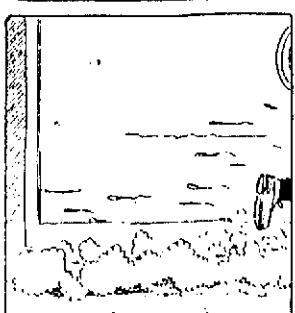

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 13.—A statement on the shooting of W. S. Coburn, K. K. K. attorney, by P. E. Fox, former publicity man for the organization is expected today from Imperial Wizard H. W. Evans, who returned to Atlanta yesterday after an absence prior to the shooting. Fox will be tried on a charge of murder on Dec. 12. H. M. Harris, of Savannah, Ga., was quoted as saying last night, that "Georgia will be startled by the evidence to be presented against Fox." Harris is a brother-in-law of Coburn.

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 8

The crew of the Betsy Clair then realized that Jack was steering the boat right for the end of the rainbow. Never had the little craft sped along so fast. And, in almost no time at all, land loomed up ahead of them. "I'll bet that's the place we're looking for," said Jack.

On and on they sailed. Then it began to get dark again. "We're going to have another storm," shouted Jinks. And a blaze of thunder proved that he was right. Just a small amount of rain had fallen when the Betsy Clair's bow was struck by lightning and partly splintered.

"All hands on deck," shouted Jinks. And Nick and Bibbs, who had gone down into the cabin, came running up toward the front of the boat. "Are we going to sink?" asked Jack, as he stood, still holding the steering wheel. "Heard for land," shouted Jinks, in reply. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"Hello, there!" called Nancy. "Is this where you live?"

"Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo!" went a bird in a magnolia tree right over the head of the twins.

The children looked up in surprise. "Hello, there!" called Nancy. "Is this where you live?"

"No, no!" answered the bird. "We live in Dixie Land! What are cuckoos?"

"Don't you know?" exclaimed Nancy looking at Nick as much as to say, "Well, of all the uneducated people we have ever met on our travels, this one is the worst." "Why is it something to tell me by?" she said.

"That's queer!" said the cuckoo. "I always tell time by the sun. I get up when the sun gets up and go to bed when it does. Does a clock go to bed and get up in the morning. And why do cuckoo birds live in trees?"

Nancy told the cuckoo bird all about clocks, and how some of them were built in the shape of a little house with a tiny door up under the roof which opened when the clock struck the hour. And she told how cuckoo birds came out of the doors and sang out "Cuckoo" as many times as there were hours marked on the clock.

"That's queer!" said the cuckoo when Nancy had finished. "I've seen many birds of my own kind and not one of them ever told me about a clock."

"Oh, but these are only pretend birds," explained Nancy. "They are so cunningly made they look real, and act real, but they aren't alive at all! I know all about it for grandpa had one."

Suddenly a new voice spoke up from another branch of the magnolia tree. "There's nothing strange about all that! For a pretend cuckoo to live in a pretend house. Why, even the real cuckoos do that! Or rather they pretend that other people's houses are theirs and they make themselves right at home."

"There was a flash of bright red among the branches and Mister Kentucky Cardinal flew down with his wings spread wide. When the mother bird comes back and sits upon her eggs again, she never notices that she has had a visitor and that there is a new egg in her nest. So she goes on sitting and keeping her eggs warm, and when they hatch out, one of them is a cuckoo!"

"Are you sure about that, Mister Cardinal?" asked Misses Cuckoo fluttering her wings nervously.

"Sure! Well, I ought to be. Just this very minute, Mister Warbler told me that there is a strange egg in her nest and she doesn't know what to do about it."

"Let's go and see," suggested

FRANCE BRINGS STRONG PRESSURE TO BEAR ON GREAT BRITAIN

Seeks Joint Action for Expulsion of Former Crown Prince From Germany—London Confident Holland Will Keep Pledge to Act as Jailer of Former Kaiser

LONDON, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press) France is bringing strong pressure to bear on Great Britain, looking to joint action for the expulsion of the former crown prince from Germany.

For the moment the British government believes it useless to try to undo the accomplished fact, but no decision regarding a final policy will be announced until the cabinet, which is meeting today, has carefully examined the whole subject in the light of President Poincaré's latest overtures.

Meanwhile the government has received no official information that the former Kaiser intends to duplicate the sensational dash of his last. British officials are confident that Holland will observe her pledge to act as jailer for the former war lord.

Not in Support Move
LONDON, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press) In the British view the ports of Hamburg, or other German ports, is not to be ruled out from possible action by France, if Germany refuses to expel the ex-crown prince, but officials here declare England will continue to support any such drastic measures.

France favors energetic sanctions being taken against Germany if Berlin refuses to give up the ex-crown prince or declines to extend the safeguards and authority requested for the international military control commission.

Newspapers Suspicious
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Notwithstanding the official optimism over reports that William Hohenzollern was planning to return to the Fatherland, some of the newspapers here continue to express suspicion as to his designs.

Ambassadors Fail To Act
PARIS, Nov. 14.—(By the Associated Press) The allied council of ambassadors failed to consider at its meeting today the return of the crown prince to Germany and Germany's attitude regarding the resumption of allied military control. The entire session was devoted to routine work, and it is unlikely that any action will be taken.

Two New York Bank Messengers Murdered in Spectacular Holdup in Brooklyn During Rush Hour

NESMITH FUND CASE SETTLED

City Will Restore It In Full On Or Before April 15 of Next Year

Solicitor Wins Fight For Accompanying Interest Rate of 5 Per Cent

By agreement of counsel before Judge DeCourcy of the supreme judicial court yesterday, the city of Lowell will restore the Nesmith fund in full on or before April 15, 1924. The city also will pay to the fund trustees interest upon the principal of $25,000 from April, 1918, to the date of restoration.

At the hearing on the case yesterday the city, represented by Solicitor Patrick J. Reynolds, won its point in the matter of the interest rate to be fixed, it being the city's contention that 5 per cent. was fair. Fisher Nesmith, representing the trustees, insisted upon a 5 1/2 per cent. rate, but after hearing testimony offered by Theodore N. Wadell, state comptroller of accounts and City Auditor Daniel E. Martin as to earnings of trust funds in the city and throughout the state, Judge DeCourcy decided the 5 1/2 per cent. rate claimed by the trustees was too high and ruled that the fund should carry an interest rate of 5 per cent. from June, 1918, to the date of restoration.

After restoration the trustees will be paid whatever income the fund earns.

The only witness called by Mr. Nesmith was Austin K. Chadwick of the Lowell Five Cent Savings Bank.

There was no issue involved as to the restoration of the principal of the fund, that having been decided by the full bench earlier this year.

This is settled a case which has been hanging fire for some time, being the result of the disappearance of the fund in 1918.

REGISTRARS HOLD ALL DAY SESSION
The board of election commissioners today is holding an all-day session for registration of voters. The office opened at 9 a. m. and members of the board will remain on duty until 10 o'clock this evening. This is the only chance for registration before city election on Dec. 3.

HIDE OPEN AT CITY HALL
The city building inspector today received and opened the following bids for furnishing new copper gutters and repainting the roof of the Worthen street school: Daniel Cushing & Co., $25,681; Davis Square Sheet Metal Co., $24,641; Harry Ogden $15,651; J. L. Douglas, $1,669. The contract will be awarded to the Davis Square Sheet Metal Co.

Knights of Columbus

The exercises in connection with "Old Timers' Night" will be carried out as planned.

DEATH OF LOCAL PASTOR

Rev. Dr. Fisher Passed Away Last Evening at His Home in Foster Street

Rev. Caleb E. Fisher, D.D., one of Lowell's leading churchmen and distinguished citizen, died early last evening at his home, 224 Foster street. His age was 65 years. He was taken seriously ill only last Saturday, at though his health had not been good for several years, and as pneumonia developed he was unable to withstand it.

In the death of Dr. Fisher thousands of Lowell people lose a sincere friend, a man who seemed to live only for the happiness he could bring to others and who ever kept himself on instant call when his services were requested. He had been pastor of the First Unitarian church for nearly 28 years, that anniversary falling on the last Sunday of the present month, and he

Elevated Station Filled When Gunmen Opened Fire on Bank Messengers

Bandits Flee in Auto Equipped With Device to Emit Smoke Screen

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two bank messengers were murdered by two bandits who stole $43,600 from them in a spectacular holdup today at the 56th Street station of the West End subway line at 56th street and New Utrecht avenue, Brooklyn.

The elevated station was filled with workers when the bandits opened fire, later fleeing with their haul in an automobile for which the police have sent out a general alarm within a 50-mile radius of the city.

The messengers who were shot were William H. Barlow and W. L. Continued to Page Twelve

THE AUDITORIUM ORGAN
Building Commission Accepts Instrument and Turns it Over to Trustees

At a meeting of the Memorial Auditorium building commission into yesterday afternoon it was voted to accept the Auditorium organ now completely installed by the Howard Organ Co. of Pittsfield, Mass., and to make final payment upon it.

Accompanying this vote was one formally turning the instrument over to the building trustees, which means that hereafter it will be available for use as the trustees desire. While the use of the organ undoubtedly will be more or less general, there will be an examining board of three expert organists to whom all applications for its use will be referred as in the competency of the applicant. Each applicant also will be subject to an actual demonstrative test before sanction is given.

OWNERSHIP OF DEATH TAXI DISCLAIMED
James C. and John W. Clarke, owners of the Red Line Taxi service, in superior court this morning disclaimed ownership of the taxicab which figured in an accident in Rogers street last January, that resulted in the death of James Kelley, four years ago.

The co-defendants assert the cab was operated independently by an individual owner who merely used their telephone line in his business and paid them a small proportion of all fares for the privilege.

From the standpoint of the jury in this one question probably hinges the Continued to Page 12

PRIMARY VOTE LESS THAN 40 PER CENT OF TOTAL REGISTRATION

Dr. Emma E. Y. Slaughter, Franklin E. Johnson, John H. Preston and Mrs. Annie D. Donovan Nominated for School Board—Results of Councilor Contests

While the vast majority of Lowell people went about their usual daily pursuits yesterday, approximately 12,000 fellow-citizens exercised their vote in the primary election, which was held in the four wards in which no contests developed. Ward 2, Eugene A. Fitzgerald, Frank McMahon; ward 3, Joseph A. N. Christen; ward 4, Arthur G. Gentry; ward 5, Arthur B. Chadwick, Edgar P. Deberry.

The first two or three precincts to come in definitely established the nomination of Dr. Slaughter, Mr. Johnson and John H. Preston, but the fight for fourth place between Mrs. Donovan, Cornelius Sullivan and R. E. Preston continued for some time before the first named pulled away to a safe lead.

Despite the fact that such a small vote might result in several overturns there were no upsets in the pre-primary "duch" as held by those fairly close to political circles. The nomination of the present councilors, Frank K. Stearns, Frederick A. Sadler, Daniel P. Moriarty and Thomas McPadden, was Continued to Page 3

FLAT DENIAL BY FORBES

Former Director Puts New Thrills Into Senate Veterans' Investigation

Flatly Contradicts the Testimony of Several Previous Witnesses

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Piercing out details of his denial of the charges against him, former Director Charles R. Forbes of the Veterans' bureau, put new thrills into the senate veterans' investigation today by flatly contradicting the testimony of several previous witnesses.

He named the lie direct to Elias L. Mortimer, of Philadelphia, who had told the investigating committee that under Forbes' administration, confidential information was furnished to certain contractors regarding proposed hospital sites.

"If Mortimer states that," said the former director, "the state that as a lie."

Then he turned to Mortimer, who was seated at a table with the committee counsel and exclaimed: "You laugh."

Chairman Reed of the committee interposed.

"You are testifying to the committee," said the chairman, "and it is not Continued to Page 12

HEALTH CONFERENCE AT NORMAL SCHOOL
A conference on School Hygiene was held at the Normal school today under the joint auspices of the state department of education and the state department of public health. The program was devoted especially to the subjects of nutrition and mouth hygiene.

The conference opened at 9:30 o'clock this morning. Burr Jones, supervisor of elementary education, state department of education, presided. Carl Schindler, physical education director of the state department of education, gave an interesting talk and demonstration on "How We May Detect and Correct Posture Defects."

He emphasized the fact that exercises to correct such deformity, especially in an over-worked child, did more harm than good. "Often a good rest is the one and only cure for such ailments," said Mr. Schindler.

Miss Lou Lombard, health inspector, gave a talk on the preparation of food-building foods. Her topic was "Nutrition As It Relates to the Health of the School Child."

"Methods of Teaching Health" were Continued to Page 11

MARCINO SENTENCED

Given Four Years and Three Months for Part in Wrecking Warren Bank

BOSTON, Nov. 14.—Joseph B. Marcino, who rose from barber to banker and became involved in many financial difficulties in various parts of the country, was sentenced to four years and three months in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, by Judge Morton in the federal district court today. He had pleaded guilty to an indictment for aiding and abetting in misapplication of $200,000 of the funds of the First National bank of Warren, Mass., last February.

SEEING THE COAST A LA MO

Tourists between Seattle and San Diego are getting quite a shock these days. Along the highway, they are coming across a covered wagon, joggling along at a snail's pace. But it holds its own on the road. For its occupants are women, save one little boy. They're Mrs. Metcalf Shaw, her daughters, Miss Gertrude Metcalf Shaw and Mrs. Marion Mantor, and Baby Jack Mantor, all of Seattle. San Diego is their destination. It is a lot more fun "caravanning" by wagon than by auto, they say.

Primary Vote Less Than 40 Per Cent Continued

conceded weeks ago and in practically every case it was not difficult to pick their opponents. Although Donald M. Cameron withdrew from the ward 3 fight, leaving the field to six candidates, the nomination of Louis J. Lord and David Dickson was in no manner a surprise.

The results in Ward 1 where Stearns, with a vote of 48, led Thibby by 25 votes with McFadden, the third candidate getting 235 votes, set the stage for a hard fight here on election day, Dec. 4. McFadden's strength as shown yesterday will have much to say about the final outcome, although the ward undoubtedly will poll a heavier vote than the other wards. Councilor Sadler's tremendous lead over J. Eugene Mullin in Ward 4 is as good as election. The present incumbent polled 320 votes against 233 for Mullin and 195 for Shea.

The vote given Councilor Daniel F. Moriarty in Ward 5 also was an indication of his return to the council for two years. With his total of 627 he showed more than the combined strength of his two opponents, although John P. Gaskin, the other nominee, will not allow a walk-away. From present indications it looks as if Louis J. Lord and David Dickson will stage a merry battle in Ward 3, the former holding the balance of power in two precincts and the latter sure of a big advance in the third.

In Ward 3 Councilor Thomas McFadden, up for re-election, will be opposed by Peter P. McFadden, a ward councilor in 1922. McFadden's lead yesterday was clear-cut and he, at least, approaches the election with the cards running in his favor.

The first precinct returns received

at city hall last night were from Ward 1, Precinct 1, at 8:30 o'clock. From then until 10:30 reports came in steadily, until Ward 3, Precinct 1, pulled down the curtain and pinned it with a declaration of stars that spelled "Apathy."

CLASH AT DUESSELDORF

DUESSELDORF, Nov. 14.—A clash between the police and a crowd of the unemployed holding a demonstration occurred last night, causing the killing of one person and the wounding of 20 others. The demonstration resumed today, the crowds which paraded the streets all day yesterday protesting against the unemployment situation resuming their tactics this morning. In general they were orderly, but the singing of the "International" was a feature of the demonstration. The city officials say they are not aware of the exact circumstances of last night's affair, in which the police fired on the unemployed.

Red Cross First Aid Special Car No. One Demonstrating in 48 Railroad Centres

Upper—Lecture by surgeon and practical demonstration inside Red Cross Car.
Lower—Railway workers after instruction showing how to handle stretcher cases.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Scheduled promptly for a five months' safety campaign, the American Red Cross railway car, equipped to give first-aid instruction, has experienced so general a demand for demonstrations that the work of this No. 1 car is reaching very large audiences, everywhere, according to reports from Major M. J. Shields, Red Cross field representative, and Dr. W. A. Redal, in charge of the car's staff of surgeons and assistants.

The tour started from Philadelphia late in July and will end at St. Louis December 21, making stops at 48 railroad centers. In the months of August and September the car covered 958 miles. At 139 meetings demonstrations of first aid were attended by 18,172 persons. The average audience was 150, and while railway men predominated, representatives of nearly all professions and industries were present to watch the expert Red Cross "crew" do its work.

How the interest has developed in this Red Cross plan of extending first-aid instruction is evident in the co-operation of school authorities, county health officers and civic clubs, in Ohio, reports state, as a result of the appearance of this first-aid car clubs are organizing classes so as to give township the benefit of this Red Cross course.

The large industries—steel, rubber, wool, lumber, dye works and others—and public service corporations, such as telephone, electric, gas and street railway companies, are advising their employees to attend the first-aid exhibitions at Car No. 1. Major Shields declares that never in his seven years' experience in this service have the city firemen and policemen, high school students, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts appeared in such large numbers as at the car meetings this year.

This traveling school of first aid is blazing the trail in a determined effort to cut down the annual toll of 60,000 accidental deaths annually in the United States, more than 25,000 of which are credited to the railway and mechanical occupations. The car contains a lecture room seating 50 persons and is so arranged that it can be quickly turned into a hospital for 30 patients. It has living quarters for the surgeons and attendants, and is equipped with emergency supplies of food, medicines, blankets, stretchers and first-aid materials.

In seven years the Red Cross first-aid cars have covered 62 railroads, travelled 208,000 miles, held 5000 first-aid demonstrations and reached more than 1,000,000 persons. The railroads have placed every facility at the disposal of the Red Cross for this humane service which is taking to the people simple and practical lessons in saving human life. The Baltimore and Ohio system is co-operating in the present instruction tour by arranging for the entire schedule to cover the company's own lines. The work of this car is influencing enrollment of many hundreds of workers in the Red Cross, whose annual campaign or roll call is taking place throughout the world from November 11 to November 22.

COLD WEATHER SERVICE FOR AUTOISTS

In no other activity is the change of the seasons so marked as it is in automobile driving and to the various needs of each season the owner or driver of an automobile who anticipates these needs and gets adequately prepared for them in the one who will have the maximum of service with the least expense.

Every owner should get in touch with "The Boston Auto Supply" for their cold weather needs as the management of this concern is announcing in their advertisement in today's Sun a varied list of aids that can be purchased at prices that are hard to beat.

Have you ever stopped a moment to consider that almost everything in life, customs and habits changes except the use and misuse of the old-fashioned neighborhood remedies? The cure for earache is clearly one of these. The ear plug of cotton, usually accompanied by the "dropping in" of sweet oil and laudanum, in spite of all that shall ever be said or written against it, will be continued, repeated and hosts of similar substances will no doubt be used to the end of time.

Whatever the cause or remedy, earache requires careful treatment to afford relief. Neuritis is merely, if even, the cause of earache. Careful examination by a physician can alone determine the real cause. Beware of "ear-drops" for relief. If you try a number and the last one affords relief, that's it. I mean, look out for it.

Earache is caused by scratching or by irritation and infection of the auditory canal. This slight infection may produce a small boil which causes temporary pain. The scratching and infection in most cases are the result of amateur attempts to remove ear-wax. Sometimes, when ear-wax has been tried and pressed against the drumhead of the ear, earache will result, but not usually.

Again, earache may be caused by catarrhal conditions. This so-called serious catarrh is a disease of the drum-cavity. It is very common in children who are not properly fed for and sometimes is the cause of running ears and small blisters on the drumhead. Slight deafness will also result from this cause.

Earache may also be caused by nasal discharges used improperly. Violent or improper nose blowing sometimes carries fluid where it irritates the ear.

No remedy is more useful or easy to apply in slight cases of earache than boiled water cooled down to a temperature the ear can stand, about 125 degrees Fahrenheit. The drops only give heat and hot water can do it better. Protect the ear carefully from external influences. Use a night cap if you wish. It will do no harm and often does good.

Severe cases of earache are for the layman to fuss with. Call your physician, as it may be a serious complication.

might have stayed on indefinitely had his life been lengthened another span. While his heart was in his church and his success was that of his people, he found time for many things outside of this sphere.

As chaplain of Kilwinning lodge of Masons he was called upon to officiate often and for years he was invited to participate in the annual Elks' services of memorial. His broad-mindedness, his willingness to take a man as he was and to see the best in him rather than the worst were attributes of his character which were at once apparent to those who valued and enjoyed his acquaintance and friendship. A keen student of history and politics he was eternally interested in all things which tended to better the community in which he lived. He believed in Lowell, he loved the city, and the city reciprocated in kind.

Rev. Dr. Fisher was born at Provincetown, April 10, 1840, the son of Nehemiah H. and Frances C. Fisher. He attended the public schools in that town and later went out to make a living. The manufacture of shoes attracted him to Lowell, but shortly afterwards he felt the call to the ministry and took up his studies at St. Lawrence university, Canton, N. Y., where he received the degree of doctor of divinity. He came to Lowell in 1865 and was installed as pastor of the First Universalist church there for 28 years he worked and labored and gave deeply of his time and interest in the affairs of the city.

In addition to his Masonic affiliations, which included Mount Horeb Royal Arch chapter, Almasius council and Pilgrim commandery, he was a member of the chamber of commerce, Lowell Advertising club and Lowell Ministerial association. He also was McAdoo is being mentioned as one of the most likely Democratic White House possibilities.

BANDITS ROB CASHIER

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—Two youthful bandits entered a subway station, early today, shackled the cashier's hands and while one filled his pockets with the money, the other made change for the few early passengers. They escaped with $650. The bandits gained entrance to the cashier's cage, it was reported by showing employee's badges and asking to use the telephone.

Two men were arrested charged with the theft. The truck is owned by the Sandusky Trucking Co., of Hartford.

CHARGED WITH MURDER

Y., Nov. 14.—Police have instituted a search for John Hymenino, laborer, charged with having shot and killed Nicola Agasitina, a fellow worker, during a fight early today in the garage of the Penmore Country club, Scarsdale, where they were employed. Both men came from Bridgeport, Conn., two days ago.

EX-GREEK MINISTER DEAD

a member of the board of trustees of the Battles Home.

MAYOR EXPRESSES SORROW OF CITY

Mayor John J. Donovan today learned with deep regret of the death of Rev. Caleb E. Fisher and paid him sincere tribute in the following comment: "It is with deep regret that I learn of the death of Rev. Dr. Fisher, D.D., pastor of the First Universalist church of this city. He was a man true to the principles of the Gospel he preached and one who enjoyed the confidence of the people of the entire city. He was a tireless worker and one who, in his 28 years of service in this city, ministered to the people regardless of race, creed or nationality."

"I had known Rev. Dr. Fisher for more than 20 years and respected him as a conscientious, zealous minister of the Gospel. He was a man whose influence among his people is sure to be missed."

MINISTERS' UNION MEETS
A meeting of the Lowell Ministers' union was scheduled to be held at noon today at the Y.M.C.A. and

EXPLAINED CODE OF GIRL RESERVES

At the meeting of the Tri-Hi club of the Y.W.C.A., which was held in the association building yesterday afternoon, Mrs. George Sturtevant spoke on the "Girl Reserves." In a general yet comprehensive manner, she explained the code of the Girl Reserves, taking it line for line and giving a short talk on the meaning of each line.

In connection with the Y.W.C.A. world week of prayer, Miss Fern Gaden of the International Institute addressed a meeting this afternoon and took as her topic, "Bearing the Yoke."

Advertisers who use The Sun consistently get greater returns on the money invested than through any other Lowell newspaper. There's a reason. The Sun goes into more homes in Lowell and suburbs than any other Lowell paper and ninety per cent of Sun readers read no other Lowell newspaper.

MRS. VARNEY ADDRESSES EDUCATIONAL CLUB

At the regular meeting of the Educational club in Kitson hall of the Y.W.C.A., yesterday afternoon, Mrs. E. E. Varney, who was the principal speaker of the session, addressed the members on "My Travels to Washington and New York." She indicated that the purposes of the trip were, what the travelers would see, how they would learn from their observations, and the pleasure derived from it.

Mrs. Varney described the places of interest and beauty which were visited including Yale college, the capitol building of New Jersey, and Wall street.

During the course of the reading papers were read by Mrs. Freeman, Mrs. John Leggat, Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Wilde. Mrs. H. J. Maguire was the accompanist of the afternoon.

The meeting was opened and presided over by Mrs. Elizabeth Leggat, while the program of the afternoon was under the direction of Mrs. J. H. Griffin. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Jensen. It was voted that two new members be admitted to the club and an application for membership in the organization was also received. A letter of thanks from the Boys' Work secretary of the Y.M.C.A., expressing the gratitude of the association for the $5 contributed by the Educational club, was read by the secretary, following which the meeting adjourned.

The speaker next Tuesday afternoon will be Mrs. E. H. Carney, who will speak on "The Stranger Within Our Gates." A meeting of the advisory board will be held next Tuesday afternoon previous to the regular club session.

Lowell Coke

Here's a man who has used Lowell Coke for the past eight years:

Horace B. Lang

Having used Lowell Coke for the last eight years exclusively for my house boiler, with the exception of one ton of another kind of coke, which clinkered badly, I can recommend it highly. There is no trouble in having it last over night, with no ashes to sift and at a less price than anthracite coal. I consider it the best fuel on the market.

STREET RAILWAY SNOW FIGHTING EQUIPMENT READY FOR BATTLE WITH OLD KING STORM

Lowell street railway snow-fighting equipment is ready for the annual struggle with old King Storm. Never in the history of the city has the street railway been so well equipped for the battle. The equipment is now being tested on the streets of Lowell, and the results are most encouraging. The equipment is now being tested on the streets of Lowell, and the results are most encouraging. ### OUR BOARDING HOUSE stubborn Reading division, open for regular traffic.

WAITING FOR THE MAJOR'S PARROT TO DO ITS STUFF

Inspection today of some of the latest devices for removing snow from the tracks and yards of the Middlesex street railway, showed on track A, a new steel derrick car, all ready and fitted out for wide leveling of snow with a huge "nose" as the snow-poker.

The total equipment now on hand and in tip-top condition for service from plow point to rear end, consists of 11 large and powerful machines, including six sheer double-truck plows of the Watson type, five sweepers of the rotary broom model and three car scrapers. The last apparatus to arrive last week completed the program laid out by the division manager, and bizzards, while never welcome, have no terrors for the street railway men now.

The total number of pieces of snow-fighting equipment on wheels and power-driven last season were eleven. If you counted closely, but some of the age-enraptured eleven were badly racked by the winter's long stage.

Early last spring the first of the old reliable rail equipment used in sweeping and plowing off snow from the tracks of the street railway, was replaced by new and more powerful designs of latest qualities. Many electric lines in the operating machinery of the big and little rail-cars were replaced and new and badly needed bearings installed in important working parts.

Lowell division car commuters will soon have a new double-truck type of snow plow hustling over local lines this season.

They are guaranteed to take care of any old storm up to New Brunswick or Labrador size, and Manager McCormick believes that with all the other motive equipment just purchased and added up for the work ahead, Lowell streets will be kept open fairly easy this winter for ordinary traffic.

The new double-truck plow and derrick of steel standing somewhat precariously on a new flat car, is something the local street railway division has never had before. Not until the coming winter will the local division have had any rail equipment capable of removing snow any great distance from the street ends on either side. This fact, coupled with the slow methods used by the city in keeping streets open where the car lines run, has resulted in thousands of serious traffic blockades, trucks and other vehicles being compelled to use the car tracks and getting in the right of way of the passenger carriers.

When snow comes this winter, the street railway is prepared to handle most storms by keeping the new "leveler" working, thus assisting street traffic in general and keeping the rails a little free from obstruction. The "snow leveler" is reported to be able to remove any amount of snow on the sides of the rails up to a distance of several yards.

Two additional winter service cars are on the impressive list of snow-fighters this season at the car barns, also—new Root track scrapers with compressed air attachments in latest design and easy handling action.

The handy derrick car is to be used probably exclusively on the Lowell-Reading line in case of severe storms. It is important that this line be kept open, and the street railway division heads already have the promise of county and state authorities that they will assist in keeping this important state road in transit condition.

The total number of Watson double-truck plows now stationed at the Middlesex street car barn for all snow-storm emergencies, is six. These are "shear" cutters, strong, almost new and with big motors.

The five sweepers have had new brushes installed, motors rechecked, and connecting machinery cleaned inside and out. The rotary brooms are large enough to stir many feet on each side of the rails and will easily remove all snow during small storms, when the new levelers will not necessarily be required.

This Little World

LONDON

BY MILTON BRONNER
N.E.A. Service Writer
LONDON, Nov. 14.—Quite a row has been raised here because a lady conductor the other day, in helping an elderly woman board the vehicle, said: "Come on, Ma!"

Indignant women wrote to the newspapers about it, saying they thought the man should be dismissed for insolence, impertinence and a few other sins. But the men all rallied strongly to the defense of the conductor.

Some of the busmen have a real sense of fun. The other day I saw an old woman hesitating about boarding. She wanted to be sure that the bus went near a certain "Rosemary line" (cockney for lane). My busman promptly tugged her aboard, saying: "Walk right into the office. We will have a conference about it."

Another time an American woman, young, good-looking, snick and snan, stood on the step as if ready to jump off, as the bus approached her stop. The ponderous bus was trundling along about 20 miles an hour. The busman, who had sized her up, put a restraining hand on the American's arm, saying:

"Better wait till it stops, Miss. You are swift in your country, but we are not so slow ourselves."

The joke is on King Haakon of Norway. A new shore limits consumption of strong drink. And for some time the police have been desperately seeking to find the place where booze was cached.

One day the police discovered where the liquor was stored, was in the cellar of the villa that Haakon has at Lygde. They not only confiscated the booze, but arrested one of the king's servants as an accomplice of the smuggler.

They had gone on in safety for months because the last place the police would suspect was the palace of the king himself!

Pleasantly circus has just been labeled "the Scotsman's cinema," which requires a little explanation. "Cinema" is English for "movie." And the Scotsman is the butt of all English jokes about people who are close with their money.

Pleasantly circus is the only place in London, where there are lots of illuminated, flashing, electric signs. Therefore it is a sort of free show.

Appropos of the recent marriage of Lady Louise Mountbatten to the crown prince of Sweden, I have just heard a story that is so good I thought to be true, if it isn't. It's a war-time story.

An English hospital, newly attached to a huge hospital in France, was waiting along the corridors. Down on her knees, he noticed a rather plain-looking woman in nurse's uniform. She was scrubbing the floor. The doctor got talkative. "I hear," said he, "that a king's man of the queen is a kinsman. What kind of a person is that?" "Oh, just an ordinary woman like me," said the nurse, who went on scrubbing. She was Lady Louise herself.

Her Dream Realized -

MRS. JACK HOUK
202 TENNESSEE ST., LAWRENCE, MASS.

EVERY young woman like Mrs. Houk before her marriage dreams dreams and has visions of her ideal home with her husband, and healthy, happy children to make her joy complete.

But as time goes on her dreams are not realized, she has no children, her life is embittered and it is hard for her to be reconciled to the conditions as they exist.

To every young woman who is in this condition the following letter should bring hope and encouragement, as we know of numberless homes that have been blessed with children, just as this home was, after all hope had been abandoned.

Here Follows Mrs. Houk's Personal Letter:

"I was of a nervous disposition and always had a tired, worn-out feeling. I would get sharp pains in my side when working too hard or when walking too much and sometimes I would have these awful dragged down feelings. I have had such troubles since I was a very young girl and had got very little relief from all the medicine I had taken, and one doctor told me that I would never have from all the medicine I had taken. I had heard a great deal about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound so I thought I would try it. By the time I had finished the fourth bottle I noticed a change in my health. My health continued to improve and I now have a big, healthy baby boy six months old. I am not doing my own housework yet as I want to get paid and strong first as it means a lot to my baby for me to be well while he is nursing. I have spoken highly of the Vegetable Compound to my friends, and I am more than willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial." Mrs. Jack Houk, 1315 Tennessee St., Lawrence, Kansas.

THE BRITISH CRISIS

The protection issue has reached a sudden crisis in England where Premier Baldwin has had the courage to appeal to the country on the tariff policy as a means of providing employment for the large number of people now idle in Great Britain.

For over a hundred years, protection has been under the ban in England and it will require strong leadership to overcome the prejudice against it, not only in England, but in Scotland and the adjoining islands. The conditions under which the parliament is to be dissolved, however, put the question in a new light. We do not believe that Premier Baldwin will attempt to impose a tariff on foodstuffs, but he does intend to raise a tariff wall against the importation of manufactured products that can be produced in England.

This election issue may prove popular among the people who have long been suffering from unemployment and idle factories. They have tried every remedy possible without success; and while pointing to the importation of foreign products that might be turned out by home industries, it may be possible to convince them that a protective tariff will enable the factories to start up on full time and to call in the idlers who have been walking the streets for two years and living on the weekly dole meted out by the government.

Against the protective policy former Premier Asquith and Lloyd George have united. This means that the old liberal party will come to the front again under very able leadership. Lloyd George, realizing that it may be too soon for him to seek a return to power, has expressed a willingness to work under Mr. Asquith as leader, putting him forward as a candidate for the premiership. This union of two men who are undoubtedly the ablest and most prominent leaders in England, has set the stage for one of the greatest political battles that England has seen for many a year.

It is quite surprising with what facility the British parliament can be dissolved and a new government elected. The dissolution is to take place this week, and the general election on December 4. That will allow but a short time for the campaign; yet it will undoubtedly be one of the hottest on record. All the great statesmen of the past century can be quoted in favor of free trade; and it can be shown also that the repeal of the corn laws as early as 1832 saved the nation from a serious famine. On the other hand, it will be pointed out that protection is the fixed policy by which the industries of the United States have attained prosperity, and that free trade having failed as the national policy of Britain, there is no other alternative but to adopt the protective policy or else let the factories remain idle.

The election contest will be watched with much interest on this side of the Atlantic. Lloyd George has attained much prestige through the success of his visit to the United States; and it would not be surprising should the conservatives be beaten that he would again become premier. He is more respected in politics and probably also more popular with the people than is Mr. Asquith. It is true that the British public got tired of him soon after the war, believing that he was a dexterous politician rather than a great statesman. He had overlooked reverses and insults even to his predecessors without a dissolution of parliament. He clung to power, however, with such tenacity that the people finally began to despise him and forced him out. It is becoming evident, however, that he is the greatest politician if not the greatest statesman in England; and at this time as during the war he may be the only man who can meet the emergency.

SEEN AND HEARD

Most any man can be popular by keeping his opinions to himself.

With only a few weeks of 1923 to play, the score shows the coal dealers have won.

Modern politeness consists of a man offering his seat to a lady when he gets off the street car.

A Thought

He who believes in goodness has the essence of all faith. He is a man of cheerful verities and content tomorrow.—J. F. Clarke.

He Wasn't Ashamed

"You've been convicted 14 times of this offense," said the magistrate severely. "Are you ashamed to own to that?" "No, your worship," replied the old reprobate. "I don't think no one ought to be ashamed of his convictions."

The Exact Difference

"Father," said the conventional young man, "what is the difference between a pedestrian and a day-walker?" "A pedestrian," returned the conventional father, "is a person who walks when you are walking. A day-walker is a person who walks when you are sitting."—Kastagram.

Double Disappointment

The sage was reminiscing and finally broke the silence. "When a young man escorts a girl home there is a long pause at the door." "Well," replied the other, "he is wondering if he can kiss her." "No," replied the sage, "he is wondering if he is going to try." "What are usually disappointed?" declared the other.

Get Living by Dying

During a discussion at a meeting of the historical society upon the flight consideration attached to life by an ancient philosopher, a speaker mentioned that in China if a man was condemned to death he could easily hire a substitute to die for him; and the dealer went on, "I believe many poor fellows get their living by acting as substitutes in that way."

Selling the House

I did not mind the thought so much. To sell the house was what I wanted. All houses were the same to me. They pointed up a necessity. I could hardly fail to see that there was a house for sale. And please apply to me. Some folks come in to look. And some come in to chat a while. And some come in to see the rooms. They looked at the rooms. And I could almost cry. When they dropped in to speak of terms.

So I said to myself, I thought so much. I did not mind the thought so much. It would be fun to sell. To move into another place. To sell the house was what I wanted. All houses were the same to me. They pointed up a necessity. I could hardly fail to see that there was a house for sale. And please apply to me. Some folks come in to look. And some come in to chat a while. And some come in to see the rooms. They looked at the rooms. And I could almost cry. When they dropped in to speak of terms.

Two Brazilian monkeys were recently given to a local man who was well known for his activities in behalf of animal welfare. On Halloween the man invited to his house two popular young ladies for the purpose of introducing them to two Brazilian monkeys. The young ladies were very much interested in the monkeys and arrived at the house in the evening. The citizens have nominated candidates for the city council and school board by a remarkably small vote. The lack of interest was intense. It remains now to pick the best candidates in the final election at which possibly a little more interest will be shown in the outcome.

Despite the fact of his being a southerner, United States Senator Underwood is being up well as a presidential candidate. The day has gone by when a candidate for president should be opposed by the north because he hails from the south.

PARKER LECTURE

CONCERT THURSDAY

Much interest is being shown all over the city in the Parker Lecture concert next Thursday evening when Charles Wakefield Cadman and Princess Tschaikowsky appear in piano and vocal recital.

To thousands all over America who admire "From the Land of the Sky," "The Water," and "At Dawning," Charles Wakefield Cadman as a song writer needs no introduction. Such great artists as Norman, Handel, Corns, Williams, Nielsen and scores of others have long made these songs, and when it is known that his Indian songs have been translated into the Russian language and some of his ballads issued in French, Spanish and Italian, some idea of the greatness of this composer may be gained.

To the well informed musical lover and critic, the name of Cadman is also identified with a big musical force in American opera and chamber music. The great success of his American opera "Shanewis" (The Robin Woman) at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York for two consecutive seasons is still fresh in the public mind. He is also finishing a new opera called "A Witch of Salem" based on the New England historical episode of 1922, which will be heard in New York in the near future. His piano orchestra work "Thunderbolt Suite" consisting of five numbers has just been issued by his London publisher, Boosey and Company, and is already scheduled for performance by many large symphony orchestras here and in Europe. Among the first to take the work will be Sir Henry Wood and his London orchestra.

Tschaikowsky, pronounced "Chie-ne-no," translated "Wild Flower" is a Cherokees Indian melody, born in the state of Oklahoma. She has always retained the individuality of her race in the matter of dress. Invariably wearing a dress of beaded leather, moccasins and a beaded band about her head, she is a very young girl in the eyes of the audience.

My father, friend, P. Rapone, known to most of his customers as "Dumb," was much amused with the recent accounts in the Sun concerning the latest Indian movements in this country. For the past 15 years, Mr. Rapone has been actively identified with Indian questions in this city. He has been the subject of many articles in the press, and has composed several songs and dances.

UKRAINIAN CHOIR HAS UNIVERSAL APPEAL

As the beauty of a flower will awaken a response in the heart of the humblest, so the appeal of the Ukrainian folk-music, as sung by that splendid choir of 40 voices, under the direction of Alexander Koshetz, which has been delighting the western world for the past four years, is to the least musically educated among its audiences, as well as to the most sophisticated.

This is primarily because the songs which the Ukrainians sing are the songs of the common people, a record in music of their simple joys and sorrows, their loves and hates, wars and wealings, their festival pleasures and moments of faith—in short, of all those experiences and emotions which are the universal heritage of the human race, and which yet have seldom found so lovely an expression as through the songs and the singing of the Ukrainians.

The members of the Ukrainian National choir were chosen from the most expert and talented singers of that singing nation, and represent the ultimate selections from 25,000 contestants, recruited from the 1920 singing societies of the Ukraine, several of which have memberships of several thousands.

The Ukrainian folk-music runs the entire gamut of the national temperament, from the grave to the gay, and the great choir which is spreading this national beauty through many lands achieves these shadings of expression by means of different forms of tone-stopping, rhythmic rising and falling, swelling waves of singular tenderness or dynamic bursts of magnificent force.

THRILLS APLENTY IN "POWDER RIVER"

"Powder River" the war picture to be shown by Walker-Rogers post, V.F.W., at the Memorial Auditorium on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 20 and 21, promises a thrill that even David W. Griffith's master productions have been unable to register.

These pictures, 12 reels of them, preceded by 1924 feet of condensed German submarine pictures, are the only official and authentic ones that ever have been released by the war department at Washington and are shown only by veterans' associations. The picture of real action by members of the U. S. Second Corps, and have been assembled so that they form the complete history of America's part in the World war, vividly portrayed without the unexciting features which might expect in such real life scenes when that was giving their lives by thousands and the great drama of France and Flanders is shown in action against the Hun.

Many Lowell boys who were overseas with the Yankee Division and other fighting units are clearly seen doing their bit in the fight for the freedom of the world.

Tickets may now be purchased at Hazzard's, 87 Merrimack street, or from members of Walker-Rogers post.

Berton Braley's Daily Poem

The Same Old Moon

The moon looks down on you and me
And we look upward at the moon;
It is the same old moon we see
Beneath which lovers used to spoon,
With silly words and tender kisses,
In days of Circe and Ulysses.

The same old moon is looking down,
But all those lovers, where are they?
Princess and Prince, milkmaid and clown,
"The wind has blown them all away";
They lived and loved, knew woe and laughter,
Died—but more lovers followed after!

The same moon looks down from above,
But it is up so high and far
It sees the lovers making love,
Yet can't distinguish who they are,
And thinks that still, the ages through,
The same old lovers bill and coo.

And if the moon, by chance, could hear,
It still would hold the same opinion;
For age by age and year by year,
In all love's magical dominion,
The words and kisses are the same
As when the first pair felt the flame.

The same old moon is in the sky,
The same thrill in each lover's breast;
Except, of course, that you and I
Are different from all the rest!—
Was it my fancy made me think
I saw the old moon slyly wink?

R. R. UNION HEADS MEET

16 Labor Organizations Discuss Legislative Proposals at Washington Meeting

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Meeting here today at the call of Warren S. Stone, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, heads of 16 railroad labor organizations took up for discussion legislative proposals for which they may ask consideration at the coming session of congress. A legislative sub-committee of the union officials headed by D. B. Robertson, chief of the Brotherhood of Engineers, had prepared a tentative report for submission and action by the larger gathering.

The chief proposal prepared for the consideration of union officials involves a change in the labor sections of the present transportation act, which would virtually abolish the railroad labor board.

MEETING OF GRACE CHURCH MEN'S CLUB

The Men's club of the Grace Universalist church held their regular monthly meeting and supper last night at 6.30 o'clock in the parish hall. The speaker of the evening was Rev. Robert Boers of Melrose, who described present day conditions in China.

He described the government and educational institutions of the country, and remarked on the fact that there are colleges over 2000 years old there, a little older than our modern civilization. The trouble with China he declared to be that of standing still while other nations progressed. This condition of suspended animation is nearly at an end, however, and he believes the day is coming when progress will once more begin and China will be one of the great powers of the world, and a much greater one than Japan.

A short business meeting preceded the address, with Dr. Howard W. Smith, president of the club, presiding, and several new members were proposed for admission.

"PADLOCK" PROVISION OF DRY ACT UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 14.—Encouraged by their victory in federal court yesterday when Judge Thompson upheld the legality of the "padlock" provision of the Volstead act which brands a law-violating saloon as a nuisance, state and government officials were preparing today to institute similar proceedings against a number of Philadelphia saloons against which they claim to have evidence of illegal sales of liquor.

Judge Thompson's decision was in the case of six Schuylkill county saloons, three of which were "padlocked" for one year and the others enjoined from further violations of the prohibition law.

MORE RED LIGHTS ON CENTRAL BRIDGE

There were red lights on Central bridge again last night when the second hole in as many days made its appearance in the center of the span on the outgoing railroad track. The other break occurred last Sunday afternoon on the incoming track near the Centralville approach to the bridge and was repaired the following day.

Last night's hole was of approximately the same proportions as that of Sunday, six inches square, and was closed by a wooden board. A watchman stood guard all last night and this morning. The cement mixture, as a "whole," doesn't look any too good.

CHARLES WAKEFIELD CADMAN COMING

Charles Wakefield Cadman who with Prince Tzanning is to give a joint recital at the Memorial Auditorium tomorrow evening in the Parker course, occupies a distinctive place in American music by virtue of the publicity he has given to the folk songs of the American Indians. This has been accomplished during the past four years through concerts and radio broadcasts, for which he is an unquestioned authority. This side of his work is exemplified in the all-American program to be presented tomorrow evening.

composer has more than three hundred published works to his credit. These include the simplest teaching pieces for children, part-songs for mixed male and female voices; piano music of various grades; organ, violin and cello numbers (arrangements and transcriptions); a dozen artistic song cycles and scores of songs. Cadman is more fortunate than most composers in that it is possible for him to adequately present his own compositions in concert. He has a vigorous style and technique suited to his own piano numbers and songs, and according to the critics a convincing and colorful interpretation.

Cadman has also written a most successful violin, cello and piano trio in major which has been widely played by chamber music organizations over the country; while his most serious piano work, a Sonata in A Major, has been widely recognized by critics and public. He has been widely represented by his choral compositions, "The Sunset Trail," "The Morning of the Year," and "The Vision of St. Laurence." The club, Citizens-Americans by that organization was held last evening with a record crowd of young folks attending. The music for the dancing was furnished by a local orchestra and a general good time was enjoyed by all present. The committee in charge of the series is composed of chairman, E. M. Perham, assisted by Paul Dione, Lucien Lussier and Edouard Lafontaine.

COMPLETE RECONSTRUCTION OF NEW YORK NAT'L LEAGUE BALL TEAM

McGRAW MAKES FIRST MOVE TO REORGANIZE GIANTS FOR 1924

Fourth Time in "Little Napoleon's" 21 Years as Giant Manager That He Has Overhauled His Organization—Ready to Trade All But Three Members

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The passing of Dave Bancroft, Harry Stengel and Bill Cunningham from the Giant roster and the acquisition by that team of Billy Southworth and Joe Deschler, is construed by baseball fans as the opening move by Manager John McGraw toward almost complete reconstruction of the New York National League club. If such it proves, it will mark the fourth time in McGraw's 21 years as Giant manager that he has overhauled his organization. As each of his earlier efforts ultimately brought National League pennants to New York, McGraw's latest move will be watched with interest by every fan from now on.

When McGraw first took over the management of the New York club he fell heir to a team which included Ames, McGinnis, Bowdoin, McGinnis, Gilbert, Devlin, Dunn, Latham, Morrie, Bresnahan and Browne. John McGraw, who had won the National League championships of 1904 and 1905.

But, when during the following years, this group of players failed to live up to the hopes of the manager, McGraw was forced to trade away some of them. McGraw, who has been quoted as saying he is prepared to trade all his 1923 players except Frankie Frisch, Ross Young and Travis Jackson, but whether the trades offered by other clubs will prove acceptable, remains a question.

McGraw's present effort in this direction is unique in that it marks the first time in baseball history that a manager has sought to break up a title-winning combination of one year.

The present deal with the Braves, incidentally, emphasizes the peculiar role of world series hero, for Casey Stengel, who goes to Boston, was the outstanding hero of the Giants during the recent world's championship games.

goal line, making an incomplete pass. What is the proper ruling on such a play?

THE ANSWER

Trying a forward pass under such conditions is a mistake. It is a violation of the rule. The rule is to be questioned. In the game between Chicago and Princeton last year, Princeton pulled off such a play for a gain of 10 yards. Getting away with it is the exception however and it is the play not to be advised except under unusual conditions such as when the team is trailing and needs a touchdown and desired to retain possession of the ball. In the play cited where one of the defensive team butted the ball, the ball is in play and the team making the pass, the pass being incomplete, back of the goal line it was a safety, counting two points for the defensive team.

INCREASED VALUATION AROUSES BILLERICA

Increased property valuation estimates in Billerica have aroused so many taxpayers that it is probable an expert appraiser will be summoned to go over the lists and make recommendations. Numerous taxpayers are complaining, claiming the re-valuation is on many properties this year was too high and that the assessors were not at all equitable in advancing the values from which the new real estate taxation lists were evolved. If nothing is done to relieve some complaining taxpayers who say they are taxed far too heavily, the matter will be threshed out at the February annual town meeting.

LOWELL CASE IN CAMBRIDGE COURT

A story of domestic discord, of missing bank deposits, entrusted to his wife's care, of months without a pleasant word or prepared meal was told in Cambridge probate court yesterday by James Beagan, president of the John Dennis Machine company of Lowell.

Mr. Beagan was testifying in his own behalf in the case brought against him by his wife and two daughters, Mrs. Jessie M. Hall and Mrs. Evelyn E. Ellis, who would have a guardian appointed to conserve his estate.

Mr. Beagan told of having $1600 or so in negotiable securities deposited in a safe deposit box in a local bank to which his wife had a key. He told of finding they had been taken. He denied ever threatening members of his family with a revolver and testified that his wife had threatened suicide.

SYRACUSE PICKED TO DEFEAT RIVAL COLGATE ELEVEN ON SATURDAY

Result of Game Will Have Important Bearing on Final Rating of Leading Eastern College Elevens—Other Big Games on Program for the Week-End

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—The Associated Press picked the least important game on Saturday's schedule of college football contests is that which will bring together the elevens of Syracuse and Colgate at the Syracuse stadium.

This year Syracuse, with victories over every foe so far, and with its goal for Saturday being to defeat Colgate, has been soundly trained by Cornell, beaten by the Navy, and tied by Ohio State.

Ver, in the light of past history, Syracuse cannot count on a victory until the final whistle blows with the orange in the lead.

Of unusual importance, is this game, because it will figure in establishing the final rating of the leading eastern college elevens. The game marks Syracuse's last 1923 appearance in the east, and if Syracuse proves victorious and if Cornell and Yale continue their winning records, these three elevens will be ranked a notch higher than West Virginia and Washington & Jefferson, the remaining undefeated elevens, each of which has played a few games.

SUBSTITUTE HALFBACK SETS RECORD DASH

When Halfback Marks, Indiana university substitute, galloped 104 yards for a touchdown in the Hoosiers' recent game with Marion, he hung up a feat which has been surpassed on but few occasions in football annals. Coming from a second stringer it was all the more noteworthy too.

Back in 1905, McCook of Lafayette ran 110 yards from scrimmage. That was when the playing field was 10 yards longer than it is at present. Eleven years later, Benny Boynton, famous Williams college quarterback, duplicated McCook's effort, grabbing a punt 10 yards behind his own goal line and dashing through the entire Hamilton aggregation for a touchdown. That run was perhaps the most sensational on record.

In 1908, Gray of Oberlin returned a punt 109 yards against Cornell, while Eckhart, Indiana, centered the yards from scrimmage in a game with Iowa.

McCormick, former star quarterback of the University of Chicago, full holiday decorations which gave the proper atmosphere to the affair. A goal of $500 has been set and last night over $300 of this sum was realized, so that prospects look very encouraging for the successful conclusion of the affair.

TELEPHONE MEN TO HONOR B. J. MAHONEY

Employees of the Lowell Telephone company will join together tomorrow evening in honoring B. J. Mahoney, recently appointed division superintendent of construction, a complimentary dinner in Lincoln hall, this city, at 6 o'clock.

Mr. Mahoney has been district chief for the Lowell district for the past 15 years and has recently been promoted to his new office. He is well known and is highly respected among the telephone employees all over northeastern Massachusetts and they were unanimous in their approval of a plan for a complimentary dinner as a mark of appreciation on his promotion. Officers of the Telephone company will be present at the dinner to extend to Mr. Mahoney the company's congratulations on his promotion.

TO INSTALL BEACON LIGHTS

Congested traffic conditions in central thoroughfares in Chelmsford have become so menacing that the selectmen have decided to install beacon lights on the upper side of Central square at the center of the town and at Vinal square in the North village. The concern placing the beacon lights on the town to try them out thoroughly before purchasing. The beacons will rest upon cement bases.

CASTLE AND SHEPPARD TRAINING FOR BOUT

Mike Castle, who is to meet Johnny Sheppard in the main bout of the Moody club card on Thursday night, is training daily in the Ward place club. Lawrence and reports from the downriver city declare the clever Mike is in fine condition.

Castle recently fought a slashing battle with Johnny Barker in Manchester, and while he lost the verdict, he went down fighting. Castle came out of the battle without any serious marks of combat and is ready to continue his whirlwind efforts here Thursday night.

Sheppard, who has created quite a sensation since his return from the west, is working out in Woburn, under the direction of Paddy Minahan. He fought last Friday night in Boston, stopping Paddy Owens in six rounds. He showed a beautiful speed and hitting ability and had been completely outclassed and in distress when the towel came from the referee.

ANOTHER ATHLETE FOR TEXTILE SCHOOL

Lowell Textile school secured a first-class athlete yesterday when John King of Dorchester secured admission to the school. King, a member of the South Boston, a member of Charley Menke's staple, Fall is working out every day in the gymnasium and desires to get away in a good start in his initial bow as a pro.

King comes of an athletic family. His father, Walter, a member of a Chicago league team in the good old days, while a brother, Eddie, formerly captain of the Philadelphia Athletics, Edie is now managing the Gardner team of Mass. Twilight league. Another brother, Ray, plays with New Haven of the Eastern league.

LOWELL MAN GETS DEER

A 16-pound buck deer, weighing more than 300 pounds, was shot in the wilds of Errol, N. H., last Saturday, by E. J. Denault of 12 Osmond street, this city. Denault retained the deer from a local hunter, yesterday announcing the prize shot. The deer is said to be one of the largest taken in New Hampshire this year.

SPECIAL USED CARS AT MOTOR MART

The Lowell Motor Mart has some fine bargains for the man who is considering the purchase of a used car. Cars of popular makes in first class condition and well equipped with tires and accessories which have been driven but few miles and taken in trade by Mr. O'Dea of the Motor Mart represent good bargains. Mr. O'Dea assures the writer that his company stands behind every car sold and that the purchaser will have cause to regret the owning of any particular car.

The Lowell Motor Sales Co., one of the largest distributors of Ford and Lincoln cars in this section have inaugurated a new and novel feature in the selling of commercial cars by conducting a drive of six days, starting with a daily parade through the principal streets of Lowell, made up of every model of business cars they sell with the price on each one attached and the payment plan on which they may be purchased. On another page of today's issue can be found their announcement which will interest every one who has a transportation problem.

BEACON SIGNAL KNOCKED OVER

The large beacon signal at the corner of Wilson and Elm streets, North Billerica, was knocked over early yesterday morning by either an automobile or by persons with malicious intentions. The light was so badly damaged that it has been sent to the manufacturing plant for repairs. Billerica police are inclined to believe that the beacon was deliberately overturned as the sides of the light bear no marks of any kind and the police say few automobiles traveling at even high speed could overturn the beacon by striking it.

LOWELL SHOEMEN ARE OPTIMISTIC OVER FUTURE OUTLOOK

Confess, However, That Prosperity is a Fickle Dame—
Most Lowell Factories Are Running on Good
Schedules With Full Complement of Help

Optimism—a lot of it prevails today in a majority of Lowell's shoe industries. The oldest factory in Lowell—operating continuously for 34 years—is on full week's running time and far from worrying over the next seasonal run prospects, although immediate business is not normal.

Four more factories with extensive, up-to-date annual outputs and prepared with new and entire lines comprising more than 75 samples of women's "low" McKays, are ready to swing in smoothly on the 1924 Easter trade orders, due in about three weeks from today.

Steady weekly runs are now the rule, but only one or two local factories find present business to date worth bragging about.

The outlook for new orders for the coming advance calls for new footwear is emphatically promising, particularly in women's misses and children's designs. Styles in the former line are due for new departures from old lines, as usual as styles change rapidly three or four times in 12 months and not a local shoe manufacturer is ever behind hand in providing samples for the latest selection counters.

Watson Offers Many Samples

One factory showcase on Middlesex street exhibits six shelves of brand new Lowell-made footwear in women's medium priced lines—the C. V. Watson Co. Three weeks from today the contract order selections will be made by "the trade" and good business is confidently expected right through the fall and winter runs up to early spring.

Lowell factories running regularly on medium lines in boys and girls' footwear say the markets are stiffer on these lines than on the men's grades. The calls for women's fancy "pumps" with the open-work front and "fancy" straps—some of them brightly beaded and laced in silver, gold and wanted materials in the new novelty demands—are increasing.

Lowell an Ideal Location

The steadily growing number of new shoe manufacturing concerns locating permanently in Lowell proves the stout contention of chamber of commerce "new business" boosters and the claim of local business "natives" in general, that this city today is an ideal spot for the spread of the medium priced shoe manufacturing industry in preference to any other New England city.

More than 1000 shoe workers of both sexes are today obtaining steady work on weekly "full time" in the several factories, large and small, located in convenient production and shipping centers of Lowell. All employees interviewed today are satisfied with their present locations and praise the class of expert operators on the good-sized payrolls.

Optimistic as to Future

Production in the Lowell factories the past few months has not been overworked, of course, but reports that some of the shoe-makers were simply marking time and running on slow payrolls, traveling the rounds of the local shoe world for several weeks are not quite true. While it is a fact that some of the Lowell manufacturers of high grades and mediums would be delighted to secure more stable business, there is a feeling of optimism today that will not waver. Not a single manufacturer interviewed by a Sun reporter today on a journey through the "shoe districts" felt that the markets for "futures" were not promising.

There has been, indeed, a stronger movement in the industry either since the first of October. Salesmen are turning in better reports; plants are running full week time; manufacturers have been able to purchase raw materials at more equitable price figures owing to a disturbed and irregular wholesale market; shoe styles are changing again, and those Lowell manufacturers who have anticipated future new designs and prepared for prompt manufacture of fashion's latest demands, are finding themselves stocked with fair orders for fall and winter runs up to the first of January, at least.

There are cheery messages from one or two of the Lowell shoe manufacturers of women's and children's footwear. Most of the local firms in the shoe-making industry prefer to handle these lines rather than men's wear, for competition in the latter highly specialized industry has been growing warmer every month, while factories marketing only women's and children's shoes are finding the trade not crowded and fairly promising most of the time for profitable coverage.

Future Market a Puzzle

Only two of the seven plants visited today by a Sun reporter showed evidence of marked time in output activities. But one of these factories are running on part time, each operating regularly the usual five and one-half days, with wages as usual and about the same number of regular employees.

One shoe manufacturer said the future market was a puzzle. He had no real complaint to make, but the situation in shoe manufacturing circles for the moment is in some respects following the road traveled by the textile and other industries. It is "wait-and-see" in other words of trade, and naturally the shoe manufacturers are not by the same force that overhauled industrial activities after long, busy runs that proved so profitable.

Most of the local shoe industrial managers feel that orders will come in heavier later in the year. Just at this time, when calls for the Easter shoe styles are in the offing, there is a wait all along the novelty shoe line of "flashes" for women, styles changing swiftly very often as shoe dealers know. Factors like these keep the manufacturers on the anxious seat for fear that other makers will get in on the ground floor with ample styles samples first, and reap the reward in first orders.

Laganas "Booked Solid"

The Laganas Shoe company on Market street is doing thrice its amount of business in the manufacture of medium grade shoes this season and today there is plenty of optimism rampant in the private offices of George and Christos Laganas, treasurer and president, respectively, of this busy concern. Starting operations in Lowell only 15 months ago, the Laganas firm now occupies the entire space on three floors in the Market street building, and many new machines have been installed during the past six or eight months. Today there is no let-up in work and output, and the outlook is promising for futures, according to Christos Laganas.

This concern has orders booked solid for continuous full work runs until next June. There has recently been some extra night work until 8 p. m. for male operators, and also Saturday afternoons on special orders, but never any curtailments. In fact, at present, the employees, male and female, number about 175. When the new year starts Jan. 1, there will be 225 men and women employed on orders already on the books for the Easter shoe trades. There has been some Cuban demand.

Between 60 and 70 feminine workers are on the Laganas payroll. The working rooms are well lighted, sanitary and the help and workmen well trained. The shoe manufacturing concern uses The Sun columns exclusively when advertising for new employees, always with prompt results and quickly obtaining trained workers who hold their jobs.

Men's Work Now the Product

The principal work today, and slated to continue until the end of the year, is on men's "loafer" shoes. When this contract is completed, the manufacture of men's shoes will be discontinued for the present, the women's shoe orders following in order for prompt delivery. There will be high and low heels on the new designs now acted upon. No boots will be made. The brown kid cut leathers are coming into favor heavily in the season to open soon. Work continues steadily at the shoe factory that began operations in Lowell in the former H. W. Macchinery plant and the headquarters of the former Federal Shoe company on Lane street. Full time is the rule, but occasional overruns are steady and there is no lively demand at present for additional output, although normal future business conditions are expected to give the manufacturers a busier time before the end of the year.

Other shoe factories reported quiet operations on regular schedules, with no "spreads" or heavy orders ahead, although demands are coming in regularly on a quiet manner from large cities and districts where Lowell shoes are popular.

The L. H. Spaulding Co., 538 Broadway, is operating steadily, but no one here predicts "futures." Full time is the working rule, but predictions covering late fall and winter business are few and far between. It isn't pessimism and it isn't optimism, but there is no curtailment in any important branch and preparation for quick revival when the three weeks' waiting period for the Easter style demands ends and full stage ahead orders follow.

Stover & Bean, 137 Fletcher street, distribute shoes from the Lowell headquarters, only, although listed in the directories as manufacturers. The company has shoe factories in North Abington and Lynn.

Pilling Co. "Busy as Usual"

The John Pilling Shoe company continues its regular activities without a let-up. Market conditions are not favorable for heavy outputs, but there is no pessimism in this time-honored Lowell shoe manufacturing office. Where able men conduct the business and keep the well known Lowell industry on its feet year in and year out. The big building with glass-paneled in granite over the main entrance, houses operation on usual schedules.

None of the executives care to predict what the business is to be next season. There is a growing demand for highest quality shoes for both boys and girls.

These grades are the only ones turned out now at the Pilling factories. The uncertainty in the past has led to leather markets has used operations in some shoe factories, and in turn, affects operating progress and programs of Lowell concerns.

The Pilling company's output today runs from 2,500 to 3,000 pairs a week. At the C. V. Watson Co. plant on Middlesex street, optimism rules in high favor. About 12 men and women are now on the payroll. A new help is desired for the time being, but during the next three weeks there will be only regular runs. At the end of that period the program of the Pilling shoe demand will be outlined and the Watson company will know where it stands in "futures."

The leaders of this thriving industry that now occupies two floors in the Burgess-lane building, expect an excellent fall and winter business. An inspection of the workrooms today indicates a good volume of output daily. Every bench was filled in the cleanly stitching and cutting rooms. The rooms for expert girl workers are ideally lighted.

Restaurant is Popular

New features at the Watson shops are a restaurant of the "White House" variety, where meals are served at least each noon. The shoe workers take full advantage of the innovation. The company now insures all employees free of charge. Contentment is evident in all the busy departments. They were filled today with every machine running and enormous piles of cut leather prepared for the "ladies' novelty" McKays shoes now being manufactured in fairly large quantities.

Operations were reported as quiet for this time of the year at the A. J. Foster Shoe Co., on Willis street. There were no predictions forthcoming here. It was evident that the same conditions affecting other Lowell shoe concerns were recognized here. Employment is on a full-week basis as usual.

Work at the American Hide & Leather company's Lowell plant continues on the well known reduced schedules with no indication of any immediate future spread from the summer operations. The situation here is as puzzling as usual, just as it is in all leather markets and with war concerns. One Lowell shoe manufacturer, equipped with late reports from all leather distribution centers, gave The Sun a short summary of conditions found by close inquiry, as follows:

"Sole leather continues very quiet and what movement there is in upper leather is confined to small lot orders, mainly for immediate use. Tanners in general are preoccupied on curtailed production scales as usual. Raw skins are comparatively easy.

"The shoe trade is active in spots. You will find some manufacturers of the lower grades merchandising large quantities and running full tilt. That happens in one or two Lowell factories, where the demand is almost extraordinary for the low grades. One shop is busy; another slows down. Sales are somewhat irregular and cut. There has been a let-down in advance ordering of high grade shoes for both men and women. Children's shoes are more active in Lowell shoes and cutouts. The retail shoe trade has been complaining of dull business. Packer hides are selling light and in small lots."

SEE THE POINT? The Sun has by far the largest circulation of any Lowell paper. Nearly 90 per cent of our readers do not read any other Lowell newspaper. See the point, Mr. Advertiser?

Jack Daw's Adventures. Chapter 8

The crew of the Betsy Clair then realized that Jack was steering the boat right for the end of the rainbow. Never had the little craft sped along so fast. And, in almost no time at all, land loomed up ahead of them. "I'll bet that's the place we're looking for," said Jack.

On and on they sailed. Then it began to get dark again. "We're going to have another storm," shouted Jinks. And a blare of thunder proved that he was right. Just a small amount of rain had fallen when the Betsy Clair's bow was struck by lightning and partly splintered.

"All hands on deck," shouted Jinks. And Nick and Bibbs, who had gone down into the cabin, came running up toward the front of the boat. "Are we going to sink?" asked Jack, as he stood, still holding the steering wheel. "Head for land," shouted Jinks, in reply. (Continued.)

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

"HELLO, THERE," CALLED NANCY "IS THIS WHERE YOU LIVE?"

"Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo!" went a bird in a magnolia tree right over the head of the Twins. The children looked up in surprise. "Hello, there," called Nancy. "Is this where you live?" "No, ma'am," answered the bird. "We live in Dixie Land! What are cuckoos?" "Don't you know?" exclaimed Nancy looking at Nick as much as to say, "Well, of all the uneducated people we have ever met on our travels, this one is the worst." "Why it is something to tell time by," she said. "That's queer," said the cuckoo. "I always tell time by the sun. I get up when the sun gets up and go to bed when it does. Does a cuckoo go to bed and get up in the morning. And why do cuckoo birds live in trees?" Nancy told the cuckoo bird all about clocks, and how some of them were built in the shape of a little house with a tiny door up under the roof which opened when the clock struck the hour. And she told how cuckoo birds came out of the door many times as there were hours marked on the clock. "That's queer," said the cuckoo when Nancy had finished. "I've seen many birds of my own kind and not one of them ever told me about a clock before."

"Oh, but these are only pretend-birds," explained Nancy. "They are cunningly made they look real, and act real, but they aren't alive."

IS CANDIDATE FOR THE LOCAL LODGING HOUSE GOVERNOR'S COUNCIL

Of particular interest today was the announcement of Abel R. Campbell, prominent real estate dealer, of his candidacy for the governor's council in the sixth congressional district, next year when state and national elections will take place.

This early announcement is prompted by the realization that the sixth district, embracing 17 Middlesex county cities and towns, ward 6 of Lynn and the towns of Lynnfield and Salem in Essex county, is densely populated and in addition covers an unusually large territory. The district has a total voting strength of upwards of 95,000 men and women.

In connection with Mr. Campbell's announcement it comes to mind that no Lowell man has had a place in a governor's council since a time a number of years ago when the late John J. Hogan sat in the council of Gov. David I. Walsh.

Mr. Campbell does not enter the fight without endorsements, for already the present council from the sixth district, Charles Sumner Smith of Lincoln, has announced he will not be a candidate and likewise Mr. Campbell has the support and endorsement of James G. Harris of Medford, a member of the council under Coolidge in 1917, 1918, 1919 and 1920.

ANNUAL FESTIVAL BY LADIES' AID SOCIETY

The annual festival of the Ladies' Aid society of St. Patrick's church will be held in Associated hall this evening and promises to conform to the usual high standards of previous parish affairs. A minstrel show, featuring the best available talent, will be the main event on the program and will be followed by general dancing. Dr. Robert A. Donahue will be floor director, assisted by Henry T. McGowan and En-

The lodging house proprietors in the future must conduct their premises in orderly fashion if they wish to continue in business, was the unanimous opinion expressed by members of the license commission at its weekly meeting last night, at which a few licenses were revoked because of recent convictions in the district court.

The lodging house license of Nicholas Michalopoulos of 312 Market street was revoked in view of a raid there last week.

Applications for lodging house permits for the premises at 50 Lee street and 155 Market street were placed on the table until the commission satisfies itself that conditions have been improved since the revocation of the same licenses following convictions in the district court a short time ago.

Peter Kikopolous, proprietor of a store at 216 Adams street, had his license revoked. His wife was convicted of illegal sale recently and Peter himself was in court for the same offense several months ago.

The Sunday license of Salvores Alfieris of 260 Adams street was suspended for two months.

BABIES WEIGHED AT POLLARD'S STORE

Over 100 babies were weighed in the infant and children's department of the A. G. Pollard company today. Babies, from 2 months to 2 years, boys and girls, each contributing to the jazziest jazz concert ever heard in babyhood, were present in the contest. The babies were divided into classes and the winner in each class was presented a special prize. The classes were: lightest baby under 1 year; heaviest baby under 2 years; lightest baby between 1 and 2 years; and heaviest baby between 1 and 2 years. A white coat and bonnet valued at $3.00 was given the winner in each class. To every set of twins weighed a crisp new dollar bill was presented.

This was the first contest of the kind held in the Pollard establishment and its success gave indication of another contest to be held in the near future.

"OLD TIMERS" NIGHT AT THE K. OF C.

The hands of the clock will be figuratively turned back, tonight, at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, when the "old timers" of the council take possession of the place and have their night.

For weeks a committee, headed by John H. Condon, has worked diligently on the plans, with the result that a program, genuinely pleasing and delightfully varied, will be presented for the entertainment of all. There are several surprises in store for the members and the grand knight and committee are making several matters of special importance. Several matters of special importance will be considered at a special meeting held during the evening, but for the most part the night will be given over to a delightful, happy program of old time songs, dances, and other amusements.

AUNT SARAH PEABODY, LEADER OF THE SOCIETY FOR SUPPRESSION OF PIPE SMOKING, SCORED A NEW VICTORY TO DAY, WHEN SHE CONQUERED THE WOODEN INDIAN IN FRONT OF TROTTERS CIGAR STORE

WILLIS REED IS NOT A LOWELL MAN

A man believed to be Willis Reed and having in his possession a card from the Lowell City Employment bureau was found in an unseemly condition on the Somerville avenue bridge yesterday afternoon and was removed to the Somerville hospital, where it was found he was suffering from a scalp wound, slight concussion and possibly a slight shock.

In an effort to locate the home of this man, Ferdinand E. Cronin, director of the city employment bureau, was called on this morning and he reported the man, known as Leander Reed, did not know where he lived except that he was not a resident of Lowell. Mr. Cronin called the Somerville hospital and received information to the effect that in addition to the card from the city employment bureau, a tax bill addressed to Willis Reed from Oldtown, Maine, and a contract between Willis Reed and the Great Northern Lumber Co. from these papers it was decided Reed belonged in Oldtown, Me., and the police authorities of Somerville are now trying to locate his family there.

The hospital this morning it was stated that his condition was slightly improved.

DIDN'T GO BACK TO FRANCONIA NOTCH

When Thomas McLaughlin appeared in district court on a drunkenness charge last Monday, he promised to go back to his home in Franconia Notch, N. H., on the first train out of Lowell. He had over $200 in his possession at that time.

Last night he was arrested again for drunkenness and when searched had only $100 left. With the provision that he get out of Lowell once and for all, he was allowed to go on a $15 fine. A sentence of five months in the house of correction was imposed on George McGowan for non-support. A drunkenness charge was placed on file.

Santo Faro was found not guilty of operating an automobile in a manner to endanger the lives and safety of the public and was discharged.

Frank J. Milnes was given two weeks in which to pay a fine of $10 for drunkenness.

George L. Swanson, non support, was continued two weeks.

MANY WOMEN SEEK EMPLOYMENT HERE

Owing to the slackening in the local mills, a large number of middle-aged women have been thrown out of employment and are now besieging the office of Commissioner E. Cronin, director of the city employment bureau, daily in search for employment as day workers in homes or offices. Many of these women are on the brink of poverty and unless employment is found for them in the near future will become dependent upon the charity department for their support. Anyone who needs a woman as a day worker or do similar work should get in touch with Mr. Cronin at once.

NO FEDERAL CASES IN DISTRICT COURT

There is a false impression prevalent in the city that federal cases are tried in the district court in Market street. This is not so, as the Market street court is known as the district court of Lowell, while all federal cases come up for disposition in the United States district court, presided over by Richard H. Brinkbein Walsh in the Thoburn street courthouse. The Lowell district court has regular sessions daily, while the U. S. district court convenes Mondays and Fridays only.

A FIERY CLOSET

For the second time in 14 hours a closet in the house at the corner of Hale and Howard streets caught fire and an alarm was sent in from last at 8:21 this morning. The fire was extinguished in short order and the result sounded at 8:15. It is believed the children playing with matches were responsible for both fires.

SMALL BRUSH FIRE

A brush fire in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital was responsible for a telephone alarm at 9:06 this morning. The fire was extinguished before any damage was done.

SUIT FOR $5000 IN AUTO ACCIDENT CASE

Thomas B. Higgins is attorney for Mr. McMahon. The defendant is represented by Donahue and Donahue.

MISS ALICE RILEY IS HONORED BY FRIENDS

The third of a series of showers in honor of her coming marriage was tendered Miss Alice Riley on Monday evening, when about 20 of her friends presented her a handsome willow rocker at the home of Mrs. Thomas O'Keefe. The bride-to-be was also presented a junior four lamp chandelier and a pair of slippers. The evening was a most enjoyable one in which Miss Riley acted as bride and Miss Laura Goline as the bridesmaid. Their attendants were Miss Norrine Manning as bridesmaid, Miss Margaret O'Leahill as best man and Miss Catherine Dunlop as flower girl. A pleasing musical program was rendered by these taking part being the following: Miss John Riley, Miss Gertrude Savary, Miss Mae Lyons, Miss Laura Goline and Mrs. Thomas O'Keefe. Vocal solos by Mrs. Flora Silva, Rose Riley, Mae Connors and Helen O'Keefe were well received. ## France Brings Strong Pressure

Continued. The question of the ambassadors to Germany, which took the initiative in the sending of a note to Germany regarding the return of Frederick William, is now said to be desirous of dropping the whole matter, while France, which was at first indifferent, but later came to favor action of some sort, is ready for such action.

The question may come up at the next meeting of the ambassadors to Germany. The occupation of Hamburg and important railroad centers east of the Rhine are spoken of in French circles as possible penalties for the prince's return. French officials realize that the British government in the threat of an election would be likely to commit that country to an extended naval or military operation to get the government would cut a sorry figure before the voters. It is felt here, if the Hohenzollerns were allowed to resume possession of Germany without attempts by the allies to interfere.

To Demand Extradition

BRUSSELS, Nov. 14.—Deputies Van Hout, Bonnesses and Mathieu, respectively members of the Catholic, liberal and socialist parties, served notice on the government today that they would interpellate it as to the measures "the Belgian government intends taking in view of the return of the crown prince to Germany." The interpellators will demand that the government ask the extradition of the crown prince in conformity with Article 228 of the treaty of Versailles.

The three deputies, the first two of whom belong to the governmental majority, also will request the government to take measures to prevent a similar return to Germany of the ex-king, which is in course of preparation. The interpellations contain criticisms of Holland's attitude. It is expected they will be presented tomorrow.

CADILLAC V-63

"The Keenest Thing I Ever Rode In"

THE above expression is by a woman to whom we recently delivered a V-63 and is her way of expressing the riding qualities of her new Cadillac. She is of a family in which we have sold eight Cadillac cars. Her car travels upwards of twenty thousand miles per year. Forty-two thousand miles the two years just passed is the record of her type 61 Cadillac.

FURTHER proof of Cadillac quality is shown by the fact that we sold this Type 61 yesterday to a company which KNOWS CADILLAC CARS for over two-fifths the price of a new V-63.
